Virginia Beach does, each summer day

Can you handle 60 thousand guests?

By Brenda Loukes

VIRGINIA BEACH—They come in flocks every summer, like birds who fly south for the winter. There is no stopping them. Besides, who in their right mind would want to put an end to one of the biggest industries in Virginia Beach—Tourism.

The big season traditionally begins over Memorial Day weekend and extends through Labor Day weekend with the added attraction of the annual Neptune Festival at the end of September.

If you're looking for a secluded spot on the Beach, it is already too late. Every inch of sand will soon be taken up with a patch-work of blankets and beach towels strewn with tanned bodies. According to James B. Ricketts, coordinator for the Tourist Development Division, on a typical summer day "if the weather is hot, if all the accommodations in the city are full, between the hotels, the campgrounds, the cottages, and people staying with friends and relatives, we have about 60 thousand overnight visitors."

Tourists spent $295 million in 1984, a 13 percent increase over spending in 1983, at $261.5 million. This year spending is expected to increase yet again. The Tourist Development Division estimates $329 million will be spent by tourists in 1985.

The sheer numbers of tourists and their money spent means profit for Virginia Beach, generating over $20 million in tax revenue for the City and creating a job market for 7,000 permanent employees and 7,000 part-time summer employees.

Jerry Ross, president of the Tourist Bureau and Oceanfront Innkeepers Association (OIA) and owner of Rudee Motel, is pleased to be a part of "the second largest industry in Virginia Beach."

"Our basic goal is to promote tourism to the best interest of the citizens, the government, and the business community," he said. "We create a business area for out of town guests."

"In regards to the citizens," Ross explained, "we take our money and put it back into the city." In doing so, the Innkeepers

Second annual

Strawberry parade taking shape

VIRGINIA BEACH—Entries for the Second Annual Strawberry Parade, a major part of the Second Annual Pungo Strawberry Festival are now being accepted. The parade is scheduled for Saturday, May 25, beginning at 12-noon. The parade route will be along Princess Anne Road from the Old Fair Grounds/Airfield to just past the Pungo Shopping Center. Last year over 70 units were in the parade and Parade Coor-

Sun readers should call deShields at 467-4884 for further information. The parade organizers are especially interested in farm equipment for the parade, which was viewed by over 20,000 last year. Deadline for application is Saturday, May 11, 1985.

Teacher Day USA celebrated

VIRGINIA BEACH—A very special day for some very special-but often unheralded-people is coming up on Wednesday, May 8.

That day is Teacher Day USA. May 8 is the one day of the year that local businesses, public officials, parents, and just about everybody in the Virginia Beach school district can take time to thank teachers for their contributions to our community.

"Teachers here in Virginia Beach are proud of the work we do," explained Gary Blumenstein, president of the Virginia Beach Education Association. "We want our community to share in that pride." According to Blumenstein, the Teacher Day USA celebration locally is part of a national and state program developed by the National Education Association and Virginia Education Association.

"A wide variety of community groups will be participating in this year's Teacher Day USA observance," noted Blumenstein.

"We deeply appreciate the support Virginia Beach has shown its teachers," Blumenstein added. "We intend to do our best each and every day of the year to show how much we care."

Roberson joins the Sun in ad & editorial posts

Christie Roberson has been affiliated with print media since 1980 in Greenville, North Carolina where she was reporter for The Fountainhead, the newspaper of East Carolina University, where she received her Bachelor of Science and Master of Arts degrees. Following a five year association with Tarheel, the magazine of North Carolina, she established a resort network also to include Sandlapper, the magazine of South Carolina, and Metro, the magazine of Southeastern Virginia.

Owner of Dare Publishing and Advertising of Kill Devil Hills, North Carolina, she published her first guidebook in 1982: Share Dare, The Guidebook of

The Outer Banks, to be followed by three annual sequels. Expansion plans for her over fifty Outer Banks client businesses into the tidewater area led her to her recent association with Pori Folio, the magazine of Hampton Roads.

A new resident of North Virginia Beach, Roberson has sold and designed distinctive advertising projects throughout the East Coast. She is also a consultant for First Capital Trading Company, Beverly Hills, California. The Virginia Beach Sun expects to reestablish its time honored foothold as Virginia Beach's elite print medium through her recent appointment to the posts of associate editor and director of advertising.

Resort enforcement

Much attention has recently been paid to the subject of rowdy behavior along the oceanfront. News columns in the Sun and the Norfolk newspapers have reported various complaints lodged by innkeepers regarding the behavior of those individuals who "cruise the strip" on weekend evenings. Reports of public drinking, foul language—even nudity have been given space in this and other area journals.

Embattled law enforcement officials concede the problem exists, at the same time announcing the beefing up of oceanfront patrols. The image of Virginia Beach as a safe and orderly vacation spot seems to be at risk, we are told.

All this before the season even begins.

It will come as no surprise to anyone with access to television, radio or print news sources that our nation as a whole suffers from an outbreak of lawlessness bordering on the epidemic.

Serious crime aside—rape murder, assault and such; we as a nation still reel from lessons learned over the past decade, with our government's highest elected officials falling like so many dominoes to the rap of the judicial gavel as president, vice-president, attorney general, senator and congressman plead guilty or resign, go snarling from office or kicking with innocence into disgrace, jail and/or a heavy book contract, coupled with talk show appearances.

Even though television dictates our dress, mode of speech and choice of leadership, most Americans probably know by now that the good guys don't always win like Hardcastle and McCormick.

And that realization promotes scofflaws; those who believe the law was made for someone else.

Those who cruise the strip cursing, drinking and imagining potential fornication most likely feel that they are simply having a good time, and to a great segment of our society today that ideal has seemingly replaced "Give me liberty, or give me death" with perhaps; "Give me a cool one and a place to raise hell!"

The oceanfront by its nature is a place to have a good time - that is what a resort is for. Drawing the line between one man's fun and another's irritation is a difficult task best left in the hands of the courts.

Activity along the strip must be controlled. The police presence must be beefed up. The right of the average citizen to enjoy one of the finest vistas in creation, the view of the Atlantic Ocean from the warm sands of Virginia Beach must be protected.

Restraint must also be part of the law enforcement package. Those who grew up in Virginia Beach may remember all too well the days in times past when overzealous officers might arrest a college student for "failure to move on," or simply stopping to talk with a friend on a street corner.

Our city's law enforcement officials are no doubt better trained than the officer of old, more professional and even tempered. Let us hope that no overreaction to the complaints of rowdiness asserts itself.

Our City's draw as a resort survives on its image of southern hospitality, beautiful beaches and clean family fun. Restraint and clear thinking are in order.—S.M.

Help wanted

I have to confess a certain weakness for the arrival of the Sunday edition of The Daily Monopoly. I always unravel that thick and inky devil to the section which I find contains some of the most creative and inventive writing found anywhere in print.

The help wanted ads. Even during those odd times when I find myself gainfully employed I cannot resist the lure of purple prose, promising the success, respectability and oodles of money just waiting to be made by the smart reader. Take this past Sunday's Monopoly. Let's see what's available.

H'mm, here's an interesting job.

BASEBALL COACH...better clip this one and send it along to Yogi Berra, he's looking for a job. Oops! Says here the fella needs a college degree. Sorry Yogi.

How about work as a BOW MAKER? Wanted for manufacturing of childrens hair accessories. Excellent pay and advancement. Advancement to what? Making tiaras?

COMPANY REPRESENTATIVE - doesn't say what you do. I suppose you just wear a tee shirt plastered with the firm's name and try and be seen in all of the right spots.

LAWN PERSON - Full time position. Now we're talking. I can see myself oiled down with aloes, shades drooping over my nose, hanging out in a lawnchair reading suspense novels all summer.

Or I could apply for a position as a PART TIME PORK INSPECTOR. Inspect fresh pork primals, it says here. Rats! You have to relocate.

By Samuel Martinette, Jr.

Got to find one more my style. How about SALES-ENCYCLOPEDIA or PHOTO-A picture is worth a thousand words, they say. I suppose that if you fail to sell them encyclopedias you fall back and try to sell them a picture or two.

Look at this one...SALES-PERSON - Knowledgeable in wines, both domestic and imported. Urp! I guess I know more about wines than I thought to. Better stay clear of that one.

SHAMPOO TECHNICIAN - Sounds complicated doesn't it? I've certainly used a great deal of shampoo in my day, but that word technician scares me away. I never have been much good with machinery.

SUPERMARKET MANAGER - TRINEES must have some supermarket experience. Well, I know I've spent a lot of time in supermarkets, haven't you? But I guess I've actually hung around drug stores more than supermarkets, so I'd better press on.

Eureka!
SURVEY PARTY PERSONNEL - Immediate opening for experienced party chief. Experienced party chief?

Are they kidding me? The original party guy? I mean how much does the job pay? Here I've been partying free all these years. Just ask around. All of my friends have seen me with the lampshade. Boy, do I have references for that job.

Here's a good one...WAITRESS-WAITER - "Easy Money."

Easy money? The person who wrote that ad must be the owner, not a waitress or a waiter.

YOU CAN BE AN OPERATOR - Now what can you say about a job that offers you the chance to be a cool dude, no doubt wearing a loud checked polyester sports coat and a neat pork pie hat? I wonder if I could be a PARTY CHIEF by night and an OPERATOR by day? The possibilities are endless.

Oh well, might as well check Positions Wanted while I'm reading.

Letters To The Editor

Government and incompetent fools

Editor:

We have a government that pays $800 for an airplane toilet seat, $500 for a clawhammer, and $100 for a screw. Yet, in an effort to "increase productivity," the Navy has scheduled a planned workforce reduction of 1,027 positions at Portsmouth's Naval Shipyard, the same yard which last month was named the nation's most productive.

I'm more convinced than ever that our government is run by incompetent fools.

The Portsmouth Navy Yard is the second largest employer in Virginia, with an annual gross payroll more than $600 million. The layoffs could result in a loss of $27 million to the local economy. Speaking from a selfish standpoint, Hampton Roads will definitely suffer from the layoffs.

More important, though, is the idea of sound government management. It's obvious that the forces behind the decision to cut manpower at our shipyard have made an unwise move. It is, however, par for the course.

Cutting manpower at the nation's most productive shipyard as a means of "increasing productivity" is absurd. Our representatives in Congress—Siskis, Whitehurst, Triple and Warner—should take action at once to correct this foolishness.

TCC hosts "Career Fair"

On Thursday, April 25, the Counseling Center at the Virginia Beach Campus of Tidewater Community College hosted a "Career Fair" — an informal gathering where representatives from Tidewater business and industry took the time to come to campus and visit with students about various careers and the academic preparation required of each.

The event was made possible through a grant from the U.S. Department of Education and carefully planned by counselors specializing in career planning and development. Such a service is one example of how TCC counselors provide a variety of services to help students attain academic and personal goals.

The counseling process at TCC begins before the student enters college. Prior to registration, the student and counselor discuss educational and career interests and the counselor determines what, if any, tests are necessary or advantageous to the student.

For example, all students who will be taking English or mathematics courses are required to take placement tests to determine proficiency and to ascertain whether developmental studies would be helpful.

The Counseling Center coordinates the campus orientation program to acquaint new students with the purposes and programs of the college, student services, and faculty members. The Counseling Center offers special interest seminars throughout the year in areas such as SEMINARS, page 3

Hackers—the new breed of criminals

Of late, news reports have alerted the American public to the idea of computer-related crimes. Newsweek Magazine recently referred to young computer hackers as a "new generation of vandals". They are often teenagers who use their skills to gain access to computers at universities, government agencies or private companies. Playing hide-and-seek with telephone security forces can be a thrilling game for them.

While countermeasures against computer crimes are being pursued in both the private and government sectors, one aspect has been discussed less frequently. Kindergarten registration set for May 15

VIRGINIA BEACH—Parents of children who will be old enough to attend kindergarten during the 1985-86 school year are advised to attend an orientation to be held at each of the Virginia Beach school division's 41 elementary schools on Wednesday, May 15, at 9:30 a.m. They will also be able to register the child for kindergarten at that time.

Each school will offer parents an informative program about the kindergarten class and will show parents and the future kindergarteners what the youngsters will be doing in school next year. Parents and their children will tour the school, with particular emphasis on the kindergarten classrooms, and the children will participate in a school bus ride, see skits by this year's kindergarten students, and participate in a story and snack time.

Those children who are eligible to attend kindergarten next year must reach the age of five on or before January 1, 1986. Virginia law requires that parents of children who will reach their fifth birthday between October 1 and January 1 be counseled by the school division on the advisability of their child attending school.

Parents are urged to attend the orientation at the elementary school where their child will attend kindergarten next year. Families who will be affected by boundary changes next year have a choice of registering children at the school currently serving their neighborhood or at the new school. After June 6, parents should go to the school which will serve their neighborhood next year to register students.

A birth certificate or its equivalent is required of all pupils enrolling in kindergarten, as is a physical examination. Also required are immunizations for measles (rubella and rubella), diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus, polio, and mumps.

The annual kindergarten preregistration is held to help parents prepare their children for kindergarten and to help the school system determine more accurately how many teachers and classrooms will be required.

Parents who cannot attend on May 15 will be able to register a kindergarten student at the school the child will attend, any weekday after June 6.

as study skills, career exploration, job search strategies and human potential.

Among the more recent programs established by the Center is the Returning Women's Network -- a support group for women returning to college or the job market after a lengthy absence. This year the network scheduled meetings to explore topics such as stress management, assertiveness training and investment strategies for women.

Each student receives personal attention at the Counseling Center, with services available to meet individual needs. Students wanting to more clearly define career goals may wish to check out the "Virginia View" computerized job search system. Students program information into the computer about themselves -- their interests and abilities, desired working conditions -- and the "Virginia View" system narrows possible career choices from a field of more than 500 occupations.

Whether it is a problem with a particular course, a desire to choose a career field, or simply the need to find out more about one's self, the Counseling Center offers student support. Students can be assured that qualified, concerned counselors will be ready to put the resources of the college to work for the student's welfare.

Court Docents conduct tours Law Day celebrated 100 times

By Lillian B. Youell, director
Virginia Beach Court Docent Program
Special To The Sun

Traditionally Law Day has been celebrated on May 1, since it was proclaimed by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1958 at the request of the American Bar Association. Its purpose is to foster respect for the law and to increase public understanding of the place of law in American life.

A joint resolution by Congress in 1961 made Law Day official and at that time President John F. Kennedy urged all citizens to display the flag and observe the occasion with suitable ceremonies.

In his proclamation last year, Governor Charles S. Robb stated that "the foundation of individual freedom and liberty is the body of the law that governs us and the Constitution and the Bill of Rights are the head of that body of law."

This year the Virginia Beach Bar Association has announced a series of events during a one-week observance of Law Day such as an "Ask a Lawyer" booth at Lynnhaven Mall, where a five-minute consultation will be given free of charge. However, the Virginia Beach Bar Association supports a program that carries out the purpose of Law Day 100 days a year.

That is the Virginia Beach Court Docent Program, which was founded in 1978 through the foresight of Mary Russo, wife of Circuit Court Judge Philip L. Russo; Marny Morgan, wife of Henry Morgan, a prominent local attorney; and Anne-Meade Simpson, who became the first director of the Program. She is the wife of Robert Simpson, Jr., now a Judge of the District Court. These women organized the Program, which is cited by the Honorable Harry L. Carrico, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Virginia, as a model to be emulated.

During the present school year, the Court Docent Program will have conducted 100 court tours for some 4,500 students in the city's public schools. All 12th-grade government students are given an opportunity to participate as well as some Business Law Classes. Half of the sixth grade classes in the city have taken part and have heard presentations by a Judge of the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court as well as by an Intake Officer of the Court Services Unit.

In addition, special tours were arranged for private schools - Cape Henry School and Norfolk Academy. In January, a "Mock Trial" was presented to about 100 students in the gymnasium of Norfolk Collegiate. Several other presentations were given to classes which were unable to participate in the court tours.

As a result of the "Day in Court" program, some parents may find that their children know more about the Anglo-American system of justice than they do. During an orientation program in Circuit Courtroom One, the students are given an opportunity to assume the roles of officers of the court. Later, they observe these people carrying out their duties. Thus, they learn the responsibilities of the judge, the jury, the Commonwealth's Attorney, the Public Defender, the bailiff, clerk of the court and the court reporter. They know the difference between a sheriff's deputy and a policeman.

During this teaching session, the Docent discusses the "presumption of innocence," the method of a jury selection and a citizen's responsibility for serving, the rights of juveniles, and that a witness may only testify to what he has perceived through his own senses or it becomes "hearsay" evidence.

Often, judges recess court briefly when it is convenient and offer to answer questions from the students.

Jail is no longer just a four-letter word that one reads about. During a tour of the local correctional facility, the students see the sparse cells, learn of the regulated diet and activities, then hear the ominous sound of a cell door being slammed. This is an impressive conclusion to a "Day in Court."

Virginia Beach Tomorrow group plans citizen response survey

By Lee Cahill
VIRGINIA BEACH—Various studies are underway to decide what's best for Virginia Beach. At least three of them are scheduled for completion by the first of the year.

What happens if the reports provide conflicting recommendations?

Councilwoman Barbara Henley posed the question during a recent presentation of the Virginia Beach Tomorrow Task Force study of "what kind of city we want in the year 2000 and how it should happen." Dr. E.T. Buchanan, chairman of the Virginia Beach Tomorrow group explained the focus of the study in this way.

Henley noted that "we've been pretty free with studies now," and said that two other studies are coming in at the same time, the Green Line study and the Master Street and Highway Master Plan. "I can see the possible conflict in recommendations (in a year) we have to make major decisions."

Buchanan conceded that he hadn't thought about this angle at all, but that it would be new to Council to resolve conflicting advice. Buchanan is a former City Council member.

The Virginia Beach Tomorrow study also will include a telephone survey of 400 citizens chosen at random.

After looking at the 24 questions going into as many as nine possible answers, Henley also said that she couldn't imagine answering all those questions on the phone.

Dr. Wolfgang Pindur of the Department of Urban Studies at Old Dominion University, which is making the survey, said that a telephone survey gives a better

The Virginia Beach Church Women United will celebrate May Fellowship Day with an 11 a.m. service Friday, May 3, at Virginia Beach United Methodist Church, 207 18th Street. Registration is at 10:30 a.m.; a luncheon and nursery will be provided.

This year's theme, "Our Piece of the Action," challenges church women traditionally involved in caring for victims of social inequities to deal with root causes and become directly involved in action that brings about social change.

Church Women United has a long history of addressing the causes of social injustice and taking part in the political process to accomplish their goals of empowerment of women, economic justice, human rights and peace. It is a national movement of the catalyst that brings Protestant, Roman Catholic and Orthodox women together in one "community of caring."

Virginia Beach Church Women United is also sponsoring the Fellowship of the Least Coin. Each woman makes a covenant to share in this fellowship of prayer and sets aside a penny as she prays as a visible symbol of her partnership. Once a year individual women bring their coins together in each local community, at the annual meeting, the May Fellowship Day Celebration.

Kubota introduces a compact tractor with direct fuel injection. The new L2500 has a 3-cylinder diesel engine with 21 PTO horsepower. Plus it has direct injection for improved starts in cold weather and better fuel economy, too.

Other standard features, not so standard on most tractors of this size, include rear and mid-mount PTO for maximum versatility when it comes to attaching implements. Surprising, wet disc brakes are standard, too. Power steering is standard on the L2500 model.

Our operator platform is designed for increased comfort, with all the important controls at your fingertips. Not underfoot. To find out more about the Kubota L2500, please direct your questions to us.

Tourism means $ millions to Beach have donated approximately $10,000 to the Virginia Beach Maritime Historical Museum, $15,000 to the Virginia Beach Museum of Marine Sciences, and $15,000 to the Virginia Beach Arts Center.

Working closely with the mayor, the City Council, and the Department of Tourism, the Innkeepers Association presents a good vacation place for people from out of state.

Who is this person we call a tourist?

According to Ricketts and the 1984 Virginia Beach Visitor Profile compiled by Old Dominion University, the average visitor who chooses Virginia Beach and his/her vacation site is 36 years old, has 3.4 people in his/her party, is married, has an income average of $32,000, spends on the average $612 per party and stays at the Beach for six days.

Most visitors are familiar with the Beach because of previous visits or through friends, but advertising plays a role in bringing in the masses. "Virginia Beach, the beach Lovers Beach," is the slogan used in many advertising spots seen in newspapers in Canada, Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, West Virginia and in magazines like Brides, Glamour and Better Homes and Gardens. Advertising can also be seen and heard on television and radio.

The tourist's love a lot about Virginia Beach; the beautiful

"We traditionally, like most resort areas, see a big bash in the early Spring."—Baker sandy beach, the warm waters and the cloudless skies, the family atmosphere, the friendly people and the large variety of restaurants from a casual beach dinner to gourmet fine dining.

Of course the positives are followed by negatives and dislikes. The high prices, traffic, parking, and crowds are a burden to tourists. But when everyone wants to have fun in the sun in a fairly small area, these are the consequences.

Captain W. W. Baker, commanding officer of the second precinct, Virginia Beach Police Department, is coping with the problem by placing more officers on the Beach front areas. Along with a team of 10 men from Second Precinct, the Shore Patrol and the Special Operation, Patrol and Tactics Bureau (SPOT Bureau) will patrol the area Thursdays through Sundays.

"We traditionally, like most resort areas, see a big bash in the early spring. People have been inside and cooped up all winter and they want to get out," Baker said.

The Police Department can only anticipate this "bash" by the weather and even then that is questionable. This year the spring crowd came earlier than expected and the Police Department was caught off guard. On top of things now, the SPOT Bureau took over the Beach front last weekend and will be patrolling the area from 7 p.m. to 3 a.m.

Baker feels that the noise and the traffic comes primarily from the local Beach residents and from the "regionals," people who come to the Beach from the surrounding cities.

"When you're talking about tourists, you're talking about the person who comes in for the prearranged vacation, the person who is renting a hotel room," said Baker.

"The biggest problem that the real tourists have is the same problem you find here and all the way to Hawaii—larceny and theft."

Baker estimated that between now and mid-June there will be anywhere between 50-100 vehicle larcenies. When the height of the tourist season arrives, beach blankets and hotel/motel rooms will be a larceny target.

"They will come and sit in front of the motel and watch you and your husband and two kids pull in, they'll watch where you go in, and watch the room number you take," Baker explained, "then what's the first thing everybody does—throw everything in the room and run down to the Beach. That is when they'll break in."

Baker feels the tourists need to exercise the same precautions that they would at their own home because unfortunately there are those out looking for people whom to prey.

As owner of the Rudee Motel, Jerry Ross has some final words of good advice. "I would advise them to have lots of sunbathing and be prepared to meet friendly people, see some beautiful sights, and just have a good time."

The Tourist Development Division, the Innkeepers Oceanfront Association, and the Virginia Beach Police Department are all prepared for the productive tourist season that is right around the corner, but what about the local residents of the Beach?

Ashley Seaman, a Virginia Beach resident, gives a peep-hole glance at next week—The Locals View. "I love the tourists. It is a great way to meet new and fun people."

Virginia Beach General Hospital honors Vols

VIRGINIA BEACH—Virginia Beach General Hospital recognized 221 volunteers for nearly 40,000 service hours over the past year at their annual Volunteer Awards Luncheon held recently at the hospital.

Awards and certificates cited individuals who had contributed from 50 to 8000 hours to various aspects of hospital operations. The top award, an 8000-hour pin, was presented to Marty Kinnach of Virginia Beach who has served since 1968. Other top awards included: Henrietta Jones and Dorothy Turpin, 5500-hour pins; June Bennett, 5000-hour pin; Carolyn Gray, 4500-hour pin; Marion Mallonee and Jeanne Meredith, 4000-hour pins; Anna Olejar and Kitty Trant, 3500-hour pins; and Sara Helmer, 3000-hour pin.

The top ten awards were presented by hospital president, W. Earl Willis, who praised the 324 men and women adult volunteers for their combined efforts since 1965 when the hospital moved to its present location at 1060 First Colonial Road.

Patricia Lett, director of volunteer services, said, "This past year we had more volunteers with more total service hours than ever. Some of our people donate over 100 hours a month in critical areas like the emergency room. They provide a personal touch that gives the patient a more pleasant stay."

The volunteer organization also assists the professional staff in duties at the information desk, outpatient surgery and recovery areas, and provide other non-professional services throughout the hospital. Their theme for the past year was "Volunteers Add That Special Touch."

Beach athlete to represent state in national tennis tournament

NEW YORK, N.Y.—Three Virginia girls have qualified to represent their state in Seventeen Magazine's tenth annual Tennis Tournament of Champions, taking place May 7 through May 11 in Mission Viejo, California.

Isabel Pauley, 18, of Fairfax, Dondi Whitaker, 15, of Richmond, and Julie Shiftlet, 12, of Virginia Beach, will be among 159 teenage girls from across the country who will play in the national tournament. Each state in the U.S., plus Washington, D.C. and Puerto Rico, will be represented by three players, one for each age division in the tournament: 18-, 16-, and 14-and-under.

Presented by the Maureen Connolly Brinker Tennis Foundation, Seventeen Magazine's Tennis Tournament of Champions is sanctioned by the United States Tennis Association. The tournament annually attracts the top performers in junior tennis, with past winners including Tracy Austin, Andrea Jaeger, Kathy Rinaldi and Zina Garrison, now all strong contenders on the professional circuit.

The 14-and-under representative from Virginia will be Julie Shiftlet. She began playing tennis when she was just five years old, and is now ranked #1 in the 12's and #5 in the 14's of the Mid-

Julie Shiftlet

Atlantic Tennis Association, as well as #38 in the USTA 12's.

Most recently, Shiftlet won the 12-and-under division of the Winter Mid-Atlantic Junior Championships, held in Virginia Beach in January. Last fall, she reached the finals of the McDonald's Junior Invitational 12's held in Lexington, Kentucky, losing in three sets to her opponent, Jennifer Nasser of Illinois. She also advanced to the quarterfinals of the National Indoor Championship 12's which took place in Cherry Hill, New Jersey. In other tournament action, Julie Shiftlet competed in the USTA/Sport Goofy National Championship 12's last August in Anaheim, California, where she reached the round of 16.

The daughter of Harvey and Mary Shiftlet, the young athlete is a seventh grade student at Great Neck Junior High School. An honor student, Shiftlet, is also a student council representative. In her free time, she enjoys art and writing, but has said her ultimate goal is to play professional tennis.

Winners and runners-up in the main draw and consolation matches of the Seventeen tournament will receive trophies. In addition, a "Most Promising Junior Player of the Year" will be announced at the tourney, selected by a distinguished committee of executives from the United States Tennis Association and the Brinker Foundation. The "Most Promising Junior Player of the Year" will be awarded a trophy and a $3,000-travel grant to help cover tournament expenses for one year. Tracy Austin, Andrea Jaeger and Zina Garrison have all captured this title in the past. The "Most Promising Junior Player" at the 1984 tournament was Stephanie Rehe.

RESORT CITY

Waiting to serve you

Manager Jo Roper (R) and Owner Fon Wong wait to serve their guests at the portals of gastronomic happiness...the entrance to the Lotus Inn dining room. Sun photo by Christie Roberson.

LOTUS INN

By Julie Blankenship

Located at 4365 Shore Drive, Lotus Inn, so named in honor of the delicate lotus flower is one of the few truly Chinese restaurants in the area. Park and Fon Wong opened the Inn on November 26, 1983 after extensive renovation. Lotus Inn, the former seafood restaurant, Quarter Deck maintains a pleasantly relaxed dining atmosphere. The tasteful red and gold decor is touched with Spring-time whites and forest green. A fireplace at the end of the dining room adds the quality of intimacy. The restaurant also has an adjoining banquet room for private parties and buffets for up to 100 people. The dining room has a capacity of 197.

An extensive buffet menu for 100 people can be accommodated with only a few hours notice. The promptness is due partially to traditionally quick service, but mainly to the means of preparing the food. Chinese cooking is one of the fastest types of cooking. The manner in which the dishes are prepared are 1) szechuan and 2) hunan, which are hot and spicy dishes, and 3) cantonese which is your basic Chinese preparation.

Despite the elaborateness of the dishes, The Lotus Inn has a carry-out service which like the restaurant is open Monday through Saturday from 11:30 a.m. until 10:30 p.m. and Sundays from 12-noon until 10:30 p.m. The Inn serves cocktails, Polynesian beverages, and boasts a wide selection of wines.

American cuisine is available, but Jo Roper, the manager of the Lotus Inn aims to "introduce people to our type of cooking." Roper has been in the restaurant business for at least fifteen years and feels confident about the success of the Lotus Inn. "Good food, good service, and good prices are more than adequate reasons to succeed," said Roper. The owners, Park and Fon Wong, also own Kueys Garden at Hilltop in Virginia Beach. "I will not brag about my restaurant. You must come in and see it for yourself," said Fon, a softspoken hospitable Chinese.

far greater threat to the organization's security than outside "electronic" invaders possibly could."

Why? Familiarity with an employer's systems enables one to know where to search for specific data. Proper prevention and detection measures are essential to protect financial, technological and other information.

Van Duyn's book encourages managers to address the human factor in computer crime as part of any overall security philosophy. In stressing that job satisfaction can be a major deterrent to employee crime, the author discusses several familiar personnel topics, including proper orientation to a work site, effective performance evaluations and career pathing.

The Human Factor in Computer Crime should be of interest to alert managers and to any readers following this relatively new category of crime.

Advanced Technology Beaches it

Advanced Technology Beach facility breaks ground

VIRGINIA BEACH—Advanced Technology, Inc. recently broke ground for the first of three proposed office buildings in the Oceana West Industrial Park here. The Reston-based professional services company provides assistance in management, engineering, and computer sciences to clients in government and industry.

The $100-million firm, which has been named to INC. magazine's list of the fastest-growing privately held companies in the United States for four consecutive years, maintains more than 40 offices across the country and employs approximately 1,800 people. Robert E. LaRose, a native of Virginia Beach, is president and CEO of Advanced Technology.

"One of the most important considerations in planning the growth of a company such as ours is the ability to predict facility needs in advance," said Ronald H. Hobbs, Advanced Technology's executive vice president, during ground breaking. "This building program reflects Advanced Technology's commitment to the Tidewater/Hampton Roads area."

The 33,000-square-foot contemporary structure was designed by SLDC Architects of Charlottesville, with SLDC President Jerry Dixon overseeing the project. A dedicated computer center, a training center, multimedia conference rooms, and a sensitive compartmented information facility are some of the features that will provide employees an environment in tune with the professional and technical nature of their work. Occupancy is scheduled for February 1986.

The general contractor is Hudgins Construction Company of Virginia Beach.

Advanced Technology opened its first Virginia Beach office in 1976 with a staff of two. The Oceana West building will consolidate a staff that now numbers about 150 people working in two operations centers. They provide expertise in the areas of combat systems engineering; command, control, communications, and intelligence; electronic warfare; non-tactical systems development; computer-based education; and artificial intelligence.

The U.S. Navy is the Virginia Beach office's primary client. Steve Owen, manager of the Virginia Beach Operations Center, explained, "The Navy in Tidewater is, in many respects, a microcosm of the Navy at large. Surface, subsurface, and air forces are present in quantity and variety. It is natural that the Tidewater arm of Advanced Technology has become a microcosm of the company."

"Ships and systems for which Advanced Technology has supported acquisition management are introduced to, operated by, and maintained by fleet and fleet support activities here," Owens said. "We find ourselves in a position to provide training, tactical, logistics, ADP, and engineering support with a fleet-oriented flavor."

"We are extremely pleased with our dynamic growth in the Tidewater area and the nature of that growth," said James Carroll, manager of the Technology Management Operations Center. "We have talented and dedicated people working in technological areas that are tied to tomorrow." Areas like computer-based training for the Office of Personnel Management, the U.S. Army, and the Department of the Treasury, and structured design, analysis and systems development for the U.S. Navy.

"Our Virginia Beach building program signifies our confidence in the business foundation of the city and in our continued growth in today's technologically oriented market," Carroll added.

Realtors raise money for Easter Seals

VIRGINIA BEACH—Realtors with the Century 21 organization recently joined in a fund-raising drive for the Easter Seal Society of Virginia. Brokers with the real estate franchise network in the Hampton Roads area joined to sponsor a Bowl-A-Thon and a variety of other projects that raised more than $13,000.

The money raised by Century 21 was presented to the Easter Seal Society during their annual telethon which was held last month. Nationally, the Century 21 organization raised more than $2 million for the Easter Seal Society during the 84-85 campaign year, making them the largest corporate contributor to the Society.

The National Easter Seal Society was formed in 1919 and is the largest voluntary direct services health agency in the United States. The Easter Seal Society in Virginia Beach provides rehabilitative services including speech therapy, information and referral services for the disabled, equipment loan and purchase, community education, and sponsors Camp Easter Seal, a residential summer recreation program for the physically disabled, mentally retarded and speech-impaired.

In Third District Addy Competition

Barker Campbell & Farley takes 10 awards

VIRGINIA BEACH—Barker Campbell and Farley, a Virginia Beach-based advertising and public relations agency, recently netted 10 awards in the American Advertising Federation's Third District Addy Awards.

The Third District competition is open to agencies in Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina that have won their respective local contests. In turn, district winners will be eligible to compete in the American Advertising Federation's National Addy Awards. The three-tiered competition is designed to recognize excellence in the adver-

Of the 10 awards presented to the agency, four were gold, two silver and four bronze. Barker Campbell & Farley was a gold recipient for a direct mail piece created for the Advertising Federation of Greater Hampton Roads, an annual report for Maryview Hospital, a local newspaper campaign for the Greensboro News & Record's tising medium.

More than 750 entries were submitted in the Third District Addy Awards contest. Barker Campbell & Farley took more awards than any other Virginia agency.

Empty Stocking Fund and for miscellaneous print material prepared for the Norfolk printing firm Teasle and Little.

The agency received silver awards for a national ad campaign prepared for Stauffer Chemicals and a local black and white newspaper campaign for the Greensboro News & Record, as well as bronze awards for color spreads for Texasgulf Chemicals, a regional black and white campaign for a consumer magazine for Kramer Tire Company, a local public service television commercial for Virginia Stage Company and a direct mail piece for Estech.

Diversification strategy

The consumer that purchases automobiles, appliances, home furnishings and other "big ticket consumer durables" will sag. By year-end of 1984 the consumer debt soared to 25% of total wages and salary disbursements.

Consumers have entered into 1985 with surfeited appetites and resolutions to pay-down their debts. Retailers will rebuild inventories with caution after costly liquidations of the past quarter. Economic growth in the first half of 1985 will be modest, reflecting softness in the consumer sector. A strengthening should be evident in the second half of the year, and into 1986.

Inflation will probably remain subdued even with renewed economic momentum. Labor continues to focus on job security rather than pay increases. Wage gains likely will be modest, in the 4-5% range.

The rise in the dollar appears to stem from the fact that foreign demand for investment dollars has expanded far beyond the net volume of dollars earned by foreigners from their trade with the United States. Foreign capital is attracted here by relatively high interest rates, low inflation and rapid business expansion. Recently, the global shift in investor preferences from tangible to financial assets has accelerated the influx of new and foreign money. No other country matches the magnitude and variety of financial assets available in the United States.

Monetary Policy: The Federal Reserve has little incentive to tighten the credit given due to the low level of inflation, the current sluggishness of the economy, the depressed conditions of some of our capital, insensitive industries and the abundant productive capacity around the world. The Federal Reserve is concerned that high real interest rates have contributed to excessive strength of the dollar and an influx of foreign capital that threatens to make our economy a "hostage" to foreign creditors.

Diversification Strategy: We continue to review the outlook for interest sensitive stocks with optimism. We are especially attracted to stocks that are sensitive to a change in long-term interest rates.

Utilities fit this specification well. The enormous earning leverage in multi-line insurance, and property and casualty insurance stocks, leads us to maintain an overweighted position relative to the Standard and Poor's 500. Considering the strength of bank stocks since the first of the year, we are not inclined to choose them at current levels. Capital goods stock will continue to be given special emphasis. Oil stocks could be vulnerable to selling pressure triggered by fears of yet another round of price cutting. Recent price strengths have carried many transportation stocks to levels I believe are vulnerable to adverse effects of principal competition that has followed deregulation.

The Tax Reform: The Treasury Department's tax reform proposal entails a redistribution of the tax burden from individuals to business.

Budget Reduction: If the final cut falls below 50 billion, the Federal Reserve may be less accommodating than predicted.

Response survey set quality of responses than a written survey. Councilman Dr. J. Henry McCoy suggested a copy of questions be printed in the paper ahead of time to alert the citizens. Pandur suggested instead a general story with the kinds of things the questions will be about.

The kinds of questions, said Councilwoman Oberndorf, are the same kinds that were asked in another recent telephone survey. She suggested that people will think they are receiving calls from the same survey. Also, she said, "People are getting survey smart" and give the answers they figure the caller wants to hear.

With some irony, Oberndorf said that the public will again be leading the way in strategic planning and "Council will be able to follow as usual."

The study will cost $60,000, with $30,000 provided by the city and the other $30,000 by the private sector. ODU is receiving $30,000 for its part of the study.

Asked by Councilman H. Jack Jennings, Jr. what came out of a similar study in 1976, Buchanan said that the Pavilion came into focus during that process.

Answering Oberndorf, Buchanan said that Council will not be asked to take any action as a result of the report. It would be a matter of receiving a report.

The citizen survey is scheduled to be made during the period from June 1 to October 31, as part of the "strategic issue analysis and forecast" phase of the study. Questions will concern priorities, impressions of the city, open space, growth, taxes, roads, housing, industries, water, leadership, and more personal information such as whether one's home is rented or owned, where the respondent works, etc.

Are Council figureheads? Jennings expresses frustrations

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

VIRGINIA BEACH—Two Virginia Beach City Councilmen have withheld approval of the 1985-86 Operating budget to underscore their disenchantment with the whole budget-making process.

Although parts of the School Board budget have yet to be resolved, Council Monday afternoon approved with amendments the budget proposed by City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck on April 1. However, Council may make changes in the budget before the second reading of the budget appropriation ordinance next week.

Eight members voted in favor of approval and two dissented. Mayor Harold Heischberger was absent. The two dissenters, Robert G. Jones and H. Jack Jennings Jr., both expressed disappointment that Council members seemed powerless to make any contribution to the budget.

"The bureaucracy runs the budget process," Jennings said, "and it's not by accident." It's the intention of the process to work that way, he said.

Jennings added that Council members have come out with well thought-out changes only to be told that changes can't be made at the last minute. He said he has expressed the same concerns every year, "budget after budget," and as the bureaucracy takes over the 11 Council members "are rapidly becoming figureheads."

Jones had pretty much the same story to tell. He said that "last year" during the budget process he made specific requests for 10-year trend lines. The Council has received some, he said, of revenues. He said that Council does not have sufficient information for critical judgments. Even when a council member makes a suggestion, he said, it is "impossible to get six members of Council to agree. It's easier for

Locals react on tourism issue

VIRGINIA BEACH—Driving down Atlantic Avenue, bumper to bumper, inching along at a snail's pace, windows opened to a humid breeze of exhaust and ocean air, a different beat booming from each car's radio; shouts and whistles of admiration sent toward the tan bodies in skimpy bikinis; signs, signs and more signs—some call it the "honky-tonk" beach of Virginia, still others believe Virginia Beach is a family place. But all the residents of the Beach have to agree on one thing — tourism breeds money.

"The residents of Virginia Beach are receiving tremendous benefits from the tourists and that is free money," said Verne Burlage, owner of the Hilton Inn on Atlantic and 4th. "We don't have to send their kids to school, they don't use the playgrounds, they don't use the roads that much; they just come to our city begging to spend their money and give their dollars for our benefit."

With approximately 300,000 residents in Virginia Beach, its characteristics are not the same as they were in years gone by. The most noteworthy change is that the season is longer. Jimmy Capps, owner of the Breakers Resort Inn, used to run a seasonal operation when he owned the Essex House Motel. Formerly opened from May through September, the motel would close completely in the winter. Today the Beach generates enough business for the Breakers to stay open year round.

"The motels have gotten more modern," he explained. "We're not the sleepy resort town that we were 25 years ago that closed up right after September."

The sleepy little town of the past is a far cry from today as tourists approach Virginia Beach

Neptune fest seeking magical persons

VIRGINIA BEACH—If you're an accomplished magician, professional or amateur, the Virginia Beach Neptune Festival wants to see what you can pull out of your bag of tricks in a special audition Saturday, May 11 at the Pavilion Convention Center, starting at 9 a.m.

The 12th Annual Neptune Festival, highlighting the theme "Magic Moments" for its September 25-29 oceanfront celebration, will be featuring the talents of local magicians who will be performing during the "Boardwalk Celebration" as an entertainment supplement to the various stage acts that will be ongoing during the September 27-29 weekend. The magicians also will be employed as a supplement to the entertainment list scheduled for the formal ball on September 21; the official kickoff to the festival.

Letters along with registration forms have already gone out to known entertainers who perform magic, on which they may indicate their desired times to audition at the May 11 session. But for those who were not on the mailing list, the Neptune Festival office at 490-1221 has registration details.

Festival officials indicate that not all applicants may get a chance to be seen at the Pavilion audition. However, the screening committee is asking that performers indicate when and where they will be performing in public over the next several weeks so that committee members may get a look at their talents.

Apparently Yankées were not a regular feature at the Club 2000, as the entire family, from tiny brown-eyed tots to Mama with bare feet and wooden staff came out to gaze upon us. The little ones giggled, flirted and hid their eyes; the grandmother greeted us with some dignity. We were indeed the first North Americans to visit their restaurant. Tortillas and beans were the menu, washed down with local beer. We were brought a bowl of green chilies known locally as "the crying tongue". My rudimentary Spanish coupled with the earnest attempts of both sides to communicate gave way to a comical conversation on the pitcher Fernando Valenzuela and Los Angeles Dodgers baseball player "Yanquis!" the little folk kept shouting.

Barnett screen debut in ABC thriller

By Jackie Matthews

Special to The Sun

Merry Barnett compares her trip to Charleston, South Carolina and working in the film "North and South" to Dorothy entering "Oz". "It was wonderful," said Barnett, recalling her film experience. The 5', 90-pounder fit right into the tiny authentic gowns needed to help fill the background scenes of the upcoming Warner Brothers production. The movie will be viewed on ABC in November.

Barnett heard about the film from a friend in Charleston. Having some theatrical experience she phoned and was accepted as a "background artist," the term used for extra players. Judi Spindel, Barnett's sister and a member of a Civil War Reenactment Club, was employed as a consultant in costuming. Both Barnett and her sister have been residents of Virginia Beach for many years.

The first scene Barnett appeared in was one of the last scenes in the film. All scenes are filmed out of chronological sequence. "I worked there six glorious days. It was all so new and exciting," she said. "I got to wear some of the most fabulous clothes and was allowed to walk freely about the set. I saw make up artists, take latex prosthetics, liquid adhesive, and change facial features of actors into civil war living legends."

There were more than 150 background artists working with the production. Each had an assigned time and a place and were always in their location and ready. "It was amazing how such a huge production ran so perfectly smooth," Barnett said. "Everyone knew their job and no one crossed over. I never saw anyone get uptight. Things went wrong, but were worked out in a professional manner."

While talking with one of the camera operators, Owen Marsh, Barnett was able to get some insight on Union rules and do's and don'ts on set. Colors were very important, especially red. No orange or blue was allowed. All colors were deep, but not bright. On set everyone's make up was constantly being given a touch up. The make-up people are very particular and are always at hand.

"My first scene had five takes," Barnett explained. The scene involved fireworks, people dancing and celebrating. During all of this excitement some horses were frightened, and bolted through the crowd. Barnett and several others were knocked to the ground.

"I wasn't hurt," Barnett said, "but my beautiful gown was ripped to shreds." The costume people were quick to pin and gather the dress in place and the scene continued. The gown was replaced the next day. There were six semi-trailers with rows and rows of gowns available for use in the production, Barnett said.

Barnett confessed she was a born and bred Southerner; however, one day she was dressed, made up, and had completed a scene before she realized Warner Brothers had made her a Yankee for a day.

The main cast was lodged in the Francis Marion Hotel. The last evening of the shoot Barnett was invited to a social where she talked with Morgan Fairchild. "She is a gracious, beautiful young woman and makes you feel as comfortable as if you were speaking with a neighbor," Barnett said she also met several others from the main cast, including Jeanie Francis, of "General Hospital" fame, James Metzger, Hal Brookbrook and author John Jakes.

Elizabeth Taylor, her dog and secretary flew into Charleston, staying less than 24 hours on location. Taylor was barely seen by most of the cast - as her role, Madam Conti was shot within the Blacklock House.

Film seminar set for Virginia Beach

NEW YORK, N.Y.—The Producers Network, an organization specializing in helping independent film makers develop their productions, has announced it will hold a weekend seminar in June in Virginia Beach, centering on financing and producing the independent feature motion picture.

According to Producers Network president Henry Honeckman, the program will be an opportunity for the growing number of film makers in the Southeast to get professional help and guidance without having to go to Hollywood.

"Nothing is worse than trying to do an independent feature the Hollywood way," Honeckman said. "We chose Virginia Beach because of the number of film projects that have come out of the area during the past few years," he added. "Our seminars have been very successful in places like New York, Chicago, and Houston, and we've had many requests to do one that would be more convenient to mid-Atlantic film makers. And what better setting to talk about the magic of moviemaking than Virginia Beach in June?"

Honeckman, himself a successful producer of the Broadway shows "On the Town" and "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," and financial consultant to such films as "Superman II" and "Taps," said the seminar would cover many areas of film production. "It will provide a tough, realistic approach to the movie business and will focus on the participants getting immediate results with their projects," Honeckman stressed. "Top-level industry professionals will conduct the two-day event and they'll provide expertise in packaging, budgeting, finance, promotion and distribution."

The seminar will be held at the Sheraton Beach Inn, Ocean Front at 36th Street, Virginia Beach, Saturday and Sunday, June 8 and 9, beginning at 10 a.m. and running through 6 p.m. each day.

Sun readers who are interested in more information should write The Producers Network, 126 South Kellam Road, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23462; or call 499-7843.

Forrest Coile Associates expands

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia Beach office of Forrest Coile Associates, P.C. (FOCAS), a full-service architectural/engineering firm, has expanded and relocated to Greenwich Centre, 192 Ballard Court. From the firm's home office in Newport News, L. Duane DeBlasio, AIA, president, said the move is concurrent with growth in Virginia and his firm's parallel development. "When we first opened an office in Virginia Beach in 1979, we saw the southside Tidewater area's potential in both the public and private sectors. Our goal to become a regionally-oriented design firm led us to the area," he said.

Located on the third floor of Greenwich Centre, the new office accommodates a staff of 15 architects and engineers at present, and has space for 24. Charles E. White, Jr., senior vice president, is office manager.

The floor plan and office space are designed to encourage communication between the architectural and engineering staff. Russell Carlock was the architectural staff designer who worked with numerous contractors and suppliers to create an open and efficient working space. The new suites total 3,650 square feet.

Forrest Coile Associates is known for work on educational projects, health care facilities, municipal and industrial projects.

The firm is currently in the process of designing the new Salem High School in Virginia Beach. Projects now under construction include the renovation and additions at Lake Taylor Hospital and the Energy Conservation project at the Municipal Center in Virginia Beach.

Howmet Corporation, a major industrial client, recently commissioned Forrest Coile Associates for the design of a structural casting facility addition at its Hampton plant.

Other clients include Old Dominion University, Tidewater Community College and the Norfolk and Chesapeake school systems.

The learning years

The years leading up to retirement include the learning years, earning years and the golden years. For some the golden years, or retirement, can be a frightening time for more than 75% of the American people. It is pictured as a time of comfort and leisure but a number of people after working for 40 years find it difficult and full of doubt.

One concern is, "What will I do with my time?" Money may be a concern and if retirement was not planned, there may not be extra dollars to take vacations, play golf, go boating or visit the grandchildren. Another concern is, "What will happen if I outlive my money?" Most people for this reason cannot just stop cold after working full time for so long. If they are fortunate they will be able to continue to work and accept partial retirement, provided of course their health is good. Keeping up their present standard of living is also of importance. But most do not realize the amount of income actually needed to maintain their lifestyle. They find out all too late that pensions and social security benefits will not cover their expenses.

One way to protect the "golden years" from turning into the "yearning years" is to plan for retirement. It is never too soon to plan for the day when there will be an old man or an old woman in your future. You got through the learning years by getting an education and found good employment in your earning years. But unless you provide for the golden years through saving, with before as well as after-tax dollars, you will not achieve your financial goals. Your contributions toward that goal will be the key to your successful retirement.

with a more casual outlook. Capps points out they don't dress in coats and ties any longer, but wear cut-offs and tee-shirts and project a laid-back attitude. The Beach tourist seems to be a younger person.

Dennis J. Mailhot, telecom consultant for Old Dominion Engineering, Inc., and a lifelong resident, also feels the Beach is attracting the younger crowd and is losing the family atmosphere.

"My relatives live in the Midwest and refer to Virginia Beach as the honky-tonk beach," said Mailhot. "You can sit and look out of my $114-thousand condo and watch people urinate on the dumpsters, drag race in the parking lot of the 7-11 store, throw beer cans at the building, curse and abuse, stop cars on the roadway and a lot more."

Mailhot fears that the long distance tourists will stop coming to the Beach. "The tourist that we have developed over the past several years (regionally) does not represent an asset to Virginia Beach. They are continually getting younger, more vulgar, and are destroying both public and private property. They have no respect for the community in general and only care for themselves and that moment."

Leigh Forbes, Jr., vice president of Forbes Candy, believes the Beach as a family place is becoming impossible, not because of the regionals but because hotel/motel accommodations are too costly. "It is hard for you to go to the Beach if you're going to take your family and provide lodging, food and entertainment," said Forbes. "In Ocean City you can get a hotel room at the peak season for $76-80 a night. Here you can expect to pay at least $110 nightly."

Some still feel the family atmosphere is present. Hilton Inn owner Burlage thinks the tourists are "excellent." He finds most are families or middle-aged to senior citizens.

Capps has heard the local residents complain that when the tourists come the streets will be packed and they won't be able to get around in their own city. "Certainly they're inconvenient, there is no question about it, but the tourist industry is a very viable industry and it is something that we've got to have," he explained. So whether the tourists are regionals or long distance travelers, they are going to come.

Making the best of what is available is Capps' theory. "We've got to do things down here that you will go back to your home town and talk about," he said. "The positive things, the good things; we've got to make you have a good time."

If a customer is satisfied, Capps feels he will come back. He likes to use the personal touch with each guest by using their name and speaking to them each morning. He says that he wants to make them feel like they're the only one in the building.

"The whole thing is you have to treat people like you want to be treated," he said. "If you can do that, do it enough times to enough people, you'll be successful."

Mailhot feels there are not enough positive things in the city to satisfy tourists. "Any place that has to haul in sand and dirt to keep the beach going has a problem," he said. "It's (Virginia Beach) the first warm water beach south, but because of the pollution in Chesapeake Bay, the water isn't that good for you. There aren't enough golf courses for you to enjoy; there are no race tracks, no nightclubs, there are none of these things for the older person."

From the kid's point of view, when I grew up, there were a lot of things to do for a kid," said Mailhot. "Sleep on the beach, go surfing, have beach parties, drive up and down Sandbridge.

Today, unless you go to a bar there is nothing else to do. They even charge to go fishing on the pier."

On the other hand, Burlage believes the Beach has improved greatly due to private industry, not the city government.

"It's (tourism) the number one industry in Virginia Beach but we are still treated like a stepchild," he said. Using as an example that the farmers have their own separate department in the city government, Burlage explained his frustrations with the Tourist Bureau falling under the heading of Economic Development.

"The tourist industry should be given top priority," he said. "It's the one that pays for the schools and everything else."

On the bright side, tourism gives Virginia Beach residents a chance to interchange with people from different parts of the country, indeed from different parts of the world.

"We've got a great place to love and because of that we're always going to have people who want to come visit," said Capps. "I think Virginia Beach is just going to get bigger, better and stronger."

Next week — A look at the tourist's reaction to Virginia Beach and its residents. How hospitable are we?

A rose is a rose

By Jay Meares
McDonald Garden Center

Roses are by far the most beloved flower in the world. Even for people who don't know a great deal about plants, they do know a rose when they see one. This time of year, roses are lighting up our landscapes. With our unusually warm April, they're a bit earlier than usual.

The rose is a good plant both for the novice and the veteran. They're one of the most multipurpose plants that I know of, coming in all sorts of shapes and sizes. For color, they come in literally a rainbow of choices. If you need a short, low-growing plant to line a bed, miniature growing roses will provide you with a long season of bloom.

Growing roses is really not difficult. As with any plant, there are a few basics to follow. First, with roses, choose a location that receives plenty of sun. Then prepare your soil so that you have a nice, rich, well-drained planting area. Mixing together equal parts of peat moss, perlite, and top soil will make for strong, healthy roots and a happier rose. A regular fertilization schedule is also important. It's always a good idea to fertilize when you plant. A good long-lasting slow-release type such as our own McDonald Greenleaf Plant Food is excellent. You can re-apply this at six to eight week intervals throughout the entire growing season. Start with an application in early March and continue through fall. Water, of course, is also a must. As long as your rose is content it will continue to put on new growth, and that means more flowers. It may slow down a little with the extreme heat of summer, but other than that you'll be rewarded with blooms, spring through fall.

To insure that those flowers keep coming, you'll need to do a little "dead heading" occasionally. Dead heading very simply is the removal of spent blooms during the growing season. When dead heading or cutting flowers for bringing indoors, the rule is to cut just above an outward facing leaf with five leaflets. The leaves closest to the flower are usually three leaflet leaves. By cutting at the five leaflet leaf, you allow the plant to quickly develop a new flower from the same stem, and the bush will remain attractive.

To protect your roses from pests, there are many possibilities. If you talk to several different rose growers, you'll probably get several different recommendations. But one spray that's been recognized by the American Rose Society is Ortho's Orthene. It contains insecticides and a fungicide that can protect your roses from insects and disease. When used at approximately ten to fourteen day intervals during the growing season, your roses should stay pest-free.

Murder!

M. Lang gives instructions for building a secret drawer, and Dell Shannon discusses her Los Angeles policeman, Luis Mendoza.

Agatha Christie enthusiasts will find information about their favorite writer in all three books, including "The Plot to Immortalize Christie," (Murderess Ink), which shows Dame Agatha being measured for her likeness at Mme. Tussaud's. If you're a Christie fan, as I am, you have probably been baffled by that oddity of publishing—different titles for the same book. How do you know if you're already read the one you've just picked up? The solution lies in The Bedside, Bathub and Armchair Companion to Agatha Christie (1979), edited by Dick Riley and Pam McAllister. The editors present lengthy summaries of each of her novels, complete with alternate titles. Of course they never give away the endings! The book is seasoned with essays about the life, times, methods, and characters of your favorite author, plus information about Agatha Christie's plays, and movies based on her work.

I have only one complaint with these books—they're too exciting. Any one of the four suggest reading material for years; put them together and you'll be devoting all your waking hours to reading the mysteries mentioned. Oh yes—many of the authors represented are still alive and writing new books.—Grant.

Council dissidents voice displeasure with budget system six members to agree with the city manager's recommendations, he said.

Jones said he spent hours and hours in previous years studying the budget and making recommendations and getting nowhere.

The former mayor added that in the present budget there are places where he thinks the city is wasting money and in a number of areas the city is functioning purely, particularly in planning. He said the Comprehensive Plan has failed to anticipate the real problems of the city.

"People say next year it should be different. I say this year it will be different." The city manager, he said, has complete control of the budget—making progress while the city's problems are gaining faster than the city's ability to cope. Jones said he did not agree with the pace. "We are doing a Mozart waltz when we need a Sousa march."

Jennings, who is facing his third Operating budget, said that he suggested last year that the salary increases should be tied to the Consumer Price Index (CPI) and that this year that may be accepted. But Council still refused to accept his recommendation of limiting the across-the-board increases to salaries below $49,196 and awarded lesser or no increases for the higher-salaried employees.

Jennings also agrees with Vice Mayor Reba McClanahan that Council should consider the line items in the School Board budget although Council has been told we can't do anything but appoint the School Board members." He said that he also has been told by people from other parts of the state that Council can exercise a degree of input on the School Board budget.

The budget approved by Council Monday was substantially the same as the one recommended by McClanahan. The total budget was estimated at $387,809,403. There are no changes included in the final reading of the budget.

Instead of a 3 percent across-the-board salary adjustment for city employees effective July 1, which will average out to 4.1 percent for the year, equal to the CPI. At a work session earlier Council by consensus decided to leave out the $49,196 limit for this year and to form a committee to discuss that and study a plan of pay increases. The committee will report back to Council at its next meeting.

No points. No fees. Low rate.
That's a home equity loan to make any owner smile.

Like a lot of homeowners, you've probably been hearing how easy it is to go to your bank for the cash you need for new cars, vacations, home improvement or whatever, simply by borrowing against the equity in your home.

But, like a lot of homeowners, you may also have found out that what looks easy at some banks can also be costly.

13.5 APR. FIXED 10 YEARS.
12.99 APR. FIXED 5 YEARS.

Not at First American. We don't believe in charging "points"—those up-front charges some banks collect for a low rate.

Starting today, and for a limited time, we don't even charge "fees"—those nagging little "title" and "recording" costs that can run into hundreds.

PLUS THE SAVINGS OF SIMPLE INTEREST.

In fact, we don't even build in front-loaded interest charges and prepayment penalties, like a lot of banks.

We charge straight simple interest. Which means you can reduce your loan interest charges by prepaying (before your monthly due date) your loan. For example, if your payment is due the 15th of the month and you pay by the 10th, you save 5 days' interest charges on the amount you'd normally pay. This can mean significant savings to you.

Plus there's no penalty for paying your loan off in advance.

Fair's fair. That's the way we offer Home Equity loans at First American.

No points. No fees. No tying around. And plain old simple interest.

There's not a more favorable way to get your cash equity out of your home, unless you've got money hidden under the floorboards in the parlor.

Come in and let us show you how easy, and reasonable, banking can be.

RESORT CITY

J. Edgar's

on the lookout for you

By Julie Blankenship

The moose is all that remains. The mounted moose head that once looked out beneath black ceilings and over the shadowy corners of the former Country Comfort remains on its original mount. Other than that, total renovation was necessary for the opening of J. Edgar's, located on Pacific, near 17th Street. Booths line the walls of the two story building, alleviating much of the shadow. The blue and beige decor is highlighted with mirrors, and with a completed 10 foot audio video projector screen, equipped with its own satellite dish.

A menu in the shape of an automatic pistol adds to the "gangster intrigue."

The menu lists an array of appetizers such as vegetable dishes, soups, cheeses, seafood, and salads. For a light touch, there are a variety of gourmet sandwiches. A steak devotee has a nice selection, and J. Edgar's "fishpond" contains a limited choice of seafood. Prices run from the $3.95 mark for lighter fare to entrees in the $5 to $12 range. The names of items such as "The Tommy Gun" give justice to the shape of the menu, and general atmosphere of J. Edgar's.

Close up: Cindy Hawks, Ray Cadell, Mac Neill, Maggie Williams.

Why the name? Owners Ray Cadell and Paul Angelson chose the name in response to the Hooveresque behavior of Angelson's 11 year old daughter April. Regardless of where Cadell and Angelson went, April was able to get her man.

J. Edgar's won't be just another nightclub to replace Country Comfort. As co-owner Cadell said, "First and foremost we're a restaurant." The restaurant also has 200 square feet of dance floor. The continuous music is a pleasant combination of jazz and top 40. J. Edgar's does serve a complete menu from 11:30 a.m. until 2:00 a.m. seven days a week.

The same hours apply to their free delivery service from Rudee's Inlet north to 82nd Street, and inland to Hilltop.

Cadell, also connected with Frankies, Sir Richard's and Monterey's expects most of his patrons to be the 25 and up age group... "We don't care how far up," said Cadell. A pervading sense of camaraderie enhances the "fun" atmosphere. As one Beach local, Jackie Waring put it, "The people that come in make the place."

Monday night saw a crowded grand opening. 350 invitations were sent out according to Cadell. The club seats 155 and a new parking lot at the rear of the restaurant was expanded.

J. Edgar's is also working with businesses along the street in a co-op effort to give the area a "clean-cut, nice image," said the owners. All those involved in the community effort agree with Cadell's statement: "We're trying to set an example."

The gangster appeal has gone over quite successfully and J. Edgar's should look forward to increasing popularity.

"I really think its going to be big this summer," said Sandy Dozier of Virginia Beach.

BIG TEN: No. 1

THE VIRGINIA BEACH PLAZA-HOTEL

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia Beach Plaza-Hotel, located off the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway on Bonney Road, is scheduled to open in mid-May. Its commercial deco style is something to brag about, a Virginia landmark — a symbol of a bustling, homogeneous downtown.

The $10 million project, which began in June of 1984, will cover a six-acre site in an area that is predicted to be the upcoming business district of the city.

The Plaza-Hotel will offer high quality facilities at a price-competitive cost. Rooms will run $50-$65 for singles and $60-$75 for doubles per night.

The eight-floor, 150-room Plaza-Hotel will be geared toward the corporate traveler and features two phones, a desk and work area in each room; full-scale convention and conference capabilities; and numerous leisure and entertainment facilities.

The main feature of the Plaza-Hotel is the 600-capacity nightclub, Streamers. The $300,000 audio-visual system, nine-level bar, and high-energy design make it one of America's most sophisticated, progressive nightclubs.

The restaurant, Nikolais, will seat 120 people, and feature reasonably priced nouvelle-cuisine dining in an elegant yet casual atmosphere.

The business facilities feature two ballrooms, each of which can be divided into three smaller meeting areas. Also included are two conference rooms, and a 75-seat capacity amphitheater.

In addition, there is a glassed-in pool with an electronic roof to be opened in warmer weather. The hotel also features a complete workout area with two saunas, and a hydrotherapy pool.

An Art Deco motif will be incorporated throughout the entire Plaza-Hotel, from paintings and sculptures in the lobby to the silverware in the restaurant. Art Deco is a style that was first popular during the 1920's, and is known for an emphasis on sharp angles and shiny surfaces.

The Virginia Beach Plaza-Hotel is owned and operated by Economos Properties Inc. Nick Economos is the operating manager. The marketing director is Mark Herron.

The architect for the project is Leo Kornblath and Associates, from New York. Sol Cohen is the contributing local architect.

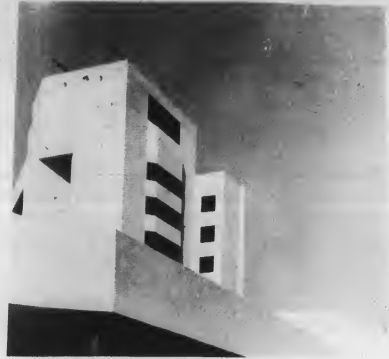

The contractor is Leo J. Martone and Associates.

Randy Vaughan of Ambassador Enterprises is responsible for the audio-sound and light construction in the nightclub. Vaughan's worldwide credentials include working with clubs in Australia, Japan and Bermuda.

The Virginia Beach Plaza-Hotel concept, franchised by Howard Johnson's, Inc., is one of only two upper mid-scale properties in the Howard Johnson's franchise.

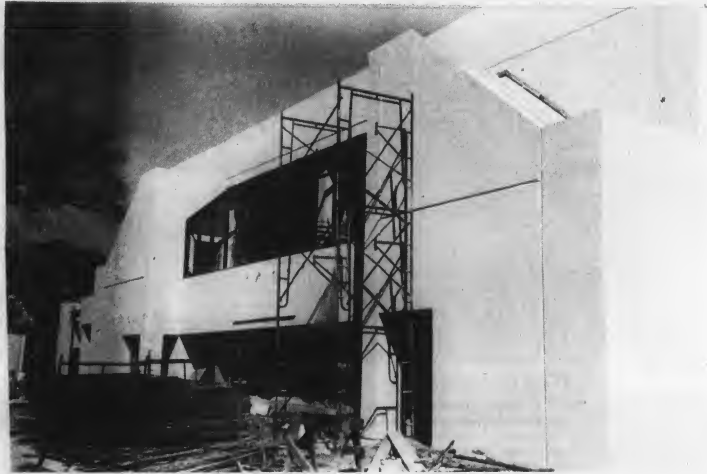

Virginia Beach Plaza-Hotel, scheduled to open in mid-May.

Mark Herron, the Plaza's marketing manager, and Jim May, manager of Streamer's, carefully scrutinize the new marketing projects.

"...a symbol of a bustling, homogeneous downtown. Its commercial Deco style is something to brag about, a Virginia Beach landmark..."

Matt Scnich has been named Head Chef of Nickolai's, a new restaurant located in the Virginia Beach Plaza-Hotel on Bonney Road, scheduled to open in mid-May.

As Head Chef of Nickolai's, Scnich will be responsible for designing the nouvelle cuisine menu and hiring and training the culinary staff. Nickolai's will feature elegant, yet affordable dining. The menu will consist of predominantly marinated, broiled dishes and sauteed items cooked to order.

Scnich plans to hire 25 food preparation employees, and 10 utility people. They will be trained under a 3-4 week program during which each employee will be cross-trained to learn a variety of different jobs in the kitchen.

Scnich is a graduate of The Culinary Institute of America in New York. He is specialized in Classical French cuisine. Scnich's restaurant experience includes cooking at Chez L'uis in Scottsdale, Arizona, Tammaron Resort in Durango, Colorado, and The Beekman Arms Inn, located in the oldest inn in the country, in Rhinebeck, N.Y. He resides in Virginia Beach.

Barnett appears as background artist

According to Merry Barnett, everything stopped as the famous actress walked through the hotel to her waiting car. Onlookers stood in awe of the 53 year old beauty, seemingly untouched by time.

Abraham Lincoln is portrayed in the film by Hal Holbrook. Although his credits are numerous, Holbrook is best known for playing Mark Twain. Holbrook received an Emmy following his portrayal of the 16th president 10 years ago, in a film produced by David L. Wolper, now executive producer of "North and South".

Patrick Swanny, best known for the role of Danny Zuki in "Grease" plays the lead role of Orry Main, the son of a Charleston plantation family.

The Barnett family of Kings Forest in Virginia Beach often has been involved in local little theatre productions. Their daughter, Mindy, 12, portrayed Norma Jean in the Tidewater Dinner Theater production of "Marilyn - An American Fable". Blake, 14, played several lead roles while he and Mindy were members of the Reflections Choir at the Aragona Church of Christ. Husband Bob has been the adult choir director at Aragona for the last decade. The Barnetts and David Verdes started a Christian vocal group known as "The Power and Light Company," and travel locally, sharing their talents with other Christian organizations.

The family, all being active in musical events, supported Merry in her endeavor.

"It was all so exciting, just being a tiny speck of Warner Brothers," she said, "I can hardly believe it took place."

Now that the experience of "North and South" is a memory and Barnett is back in Virginia Beach with her family and, back on her job as a sales rep for the Whitehall Pharmaceutical Company, her statement was, "you know, there really isn't any place like home."

PTA meets

Windsor Oaks Elementary PTA will hold a general meeting on Monday, May 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria. The program will include the installation of newly-elected PTA officers and the spring concert arranged by music teacher, Veta Faison. The meeting is open to the public.

Free lecture

NDC Medical Center, 1135 First Colonial Road, will hold a free lecture, "Diabetes, The Importance of Proper Nutrition" on Wednesday, May 15 at 7 p.m. Nancy Harris, a registered dietician, will discuss how to follow the diabetic diet. Sun readers should call 481-1777 to register.

Illiteracy

dress a letter well enough to guarantee that it will reach its destination; 20 percent cannot write a check that will be processed by their bank; over 40 percent are unable to determine the correct amount of change they should receive, given a cash register receipt and the denomination of the bill used for payment.

Combining heartrending personal stories of adult illiterates as they try to cope with an increasingly complex society, with hard statistics to document the problem, Kozol advocates a concrete program which calls for unprecedented action on the scale of the civil rights movement of the 1960's. Though immense and discouraging, Kozol calls the problem of adult illiteracy solvable.

Written under the auspices of the Rockefeller Foundation, Illiterate America promises to do for illiteracy what Jonathan Schell's Fate of the Earth did for nuclear war.

Budget approved as presented

7.5 percent across-the-board salary increase with a one-step merit increase for employees who are on the same pay plan as city employees to five percent with a two-step merit increase, to be in line with the increase for city employees. This may reduce the Board's budget by $200,000.

•Another $4,743 was added to the Independence Center budget to meet the center's request of $33,848. The request was not received in time for the original budget.

•A $5,000 allocation for the Committee for Intergovernmental Tax Equity was eliminated.

•Council added $45,500 to reimburse non-exempt charitable organizations for real estate taxes due to the city, for the Volunteers of America agency.

•Council included $16,200 for the YMCA's Women-In-Crisis program.

•A $1.5 million allocation for the Virginia Beach Arts Center was included to match state contributions on a dollar-to-dollar basis.

•The Veterans Memorial Committee will receive a contribution of $25,000.

•Council increased funding for the Burton Station capital project from $80,000 to $200,000 to provide for engineering for the entire, rather than partial project.

•Since Council was concerned about the appropriation of funds for accelerating capital projects when the projects have yet to be identified this allocation, from the fund balance was reduced to $319,000.

Still to be figured in the budget is the impact of the Fair Employment Standards Act and health insurance costs.

PART THREE. NO. 3.

Through the eyes of the tourists

The visitors rate Virginia Beach

By Brenda P. Loukes
Staff Writer

VIRGINIA BEACH—If you happen to be a visitor to Virginia Beach during the week of May 19-25, you're a prize commodity; you're what the whole of Virginia is celebrating—National Tourism Week.

At first glance, a celebration for the tourist leads me to believe that we love their company. But during the past three weeks of speaking with officials and local residents, I've decided it is not the tourist as a person that we love but the money the tourist generates.

In part one of this three part series on Tourism, the Tourist Development Division, the Inner-Chesapeake Association and the Virginia Beach Police Department (2nd Precinct), discussed the numbers of visitors (60 thousand overnighters), the estimated dollars to be spent in 1985 by tourists ($329 million), the role each organization plays concerning the citizens, the government and the business community, and the biggest problems encountered during the high season—larceny and theft.

Part Two focused on the local resident's point of view. Although all Virginia Beach residents benefit from tourism, the most positive response came from the Hotel/Motel owners. Overall the Beach has changed during the last 25 years, with a larger influx of visitors, more residents (300,000 approximation), and a longer tourism season. Some feel the Beach still projects a family atmosphere but others feel because of the high prices and the younger crowds, and the many signs and cars on Atlantic Avenue that the Beach is becoming "Honky-Tonk" haven.

Before I continue, let me say that I, like a tourist, am a part-time resident of Virginia Beach. I am not a tourist, so to speak, as I am not staying in a hotel, nor do I eat in restaurants every night, and I don't get the chance to sun on the Beach every day. Nor am I a resident of Virginia Beach; I have only been here for a month and a half and will be leaving in about three weeks. I am an in-between who has been happily dropped into Virginia Beach for a journalism internship for my university on the West Coast.

Armed with my newly acquired information on tourism, I took to the Beach front to seek out the people so important to Virginia Beach—the tourists. I must admit, I had a preconceived idea of the responses I would receive, but I'm pleased to say that I was wrong. The people who come to visit this beautiful place love it!

The young, the old, the singles and the married, all had overwhelmingly positive remarks that far outweighed the negatives.

How hospitable are you, Virginia Beach resident? Very!

Kelly A. Brenner, single and 21, visited the Beach from Carmel Indiana, and liked everything so much that she decided to move here.

"The people of the Beach are great," she explained. "I was on my way to the airport and I got a flat tire. I almost died when I thought I was going to miss my flight but would you believe it, within five minutes a local stopped and helped me change the rent-a-car tire. I just made my flight!"

It took Brenner six months to save enough money to really believe that she could actually move to the Beach. Now that she is here, she is going to stay.

Some are new to the Beach and some are old timers.

Deborah Mixon, Nannette and Nannie Lampkin, from Cleveland, Ohio, decided they wanted a change from Florida, where they usually vacation. They drove 13 hours to see the Beach.

"We wanted to get away and not spend a lot of money," said Nannette Lampkin.

"We've already seen Florida so we just decided to come this route," explained Mixon. "Sometimes when you're traveling you like to see some different parts rather than one particular area."

Although the weather was a bit cloudy on a recent Friday afternoon, Nannie Lampkin couldn't have been more delighted. "We love it, everything about this place, Atlantic Avenue, the people, the shops—it's great. Remember, we came from Cleveland!"

Carolyn Lawrence, from Rocky Mount, North Carolina, is well-seasoned to Virginia Beach, visiting here for 28 years. "My husband and I came here when VIRGINIA BEACH—A Michael Worrell is a little bit Huck Finn and a little bit Horatio Alger, a dreamer and a doer. He also has built a personal challenge into an international racing spectacle.

The 42-year-old businessman, sporting an ever-present baseball cap, looks more sailor than entrepreneur. But don't let his demeanor fool you. He and his brother, Chris, own one of the most popular nightspots along the Virginia Beach resort strip as well as almost a city block of prime resort property. They are building a 10-story hotel behind the Worrell Bros. Restaurant and transforming an adjacent 50-room hotel into office space. The metamorphosis of a tiny sailboat race into a major event is just one more example of their marketing savvy: Chris lends support and Mike tends to the details of promoting.

Mike Worrell is a stock market buff, a voracious reader, a collector of memorable quotations and a perfectionist who won't even trust a secretary to type race forms or collate media kits. He never did like school, but he always loved the water. So it seems right that the Worrell story begins at the boardwalk, where both Mike and Chris took summer jobs as lifeguards.

From their perches atop the tall lifeguard chairs, the Worrells could survey the beach. What it didn't have, they decided, was a nightspot for young people. By the age that most teens are ordering burgers and their first legal beers, Mike and Chris were serving them at their own business. "We were part of a revolution and didn't even know it," said Mike Worrell, who at the time didn't know one end of a spatula from another.

Cashing in on the first wave of the baby boom gave Worrell time to pursue another passion—sailing. Mike spent his days crashing through the surf on his catamaran sailboat and his nights with his brother in the restaurant.

In 1974, Mike and Chris and some friends were sitting down over an icy brew when they started discussing the possibility of sailing from Virginia Beach to Florida. "I didn't think of it as any more than an extended day sail—an adventure," Worrell remembers. Twenty days and a couple of hurricanes later, he and his buddies knew it was much more than that.

Advice to visitors

A few words of wisdom from Cpt. W. W. Baker

1. Lock hotel/motel rooms at all times.
2. Lock valuables in the hotel/motel safe. "I've never yet had a safe down here busted."
3. Lock automobiles and hide valuables from view. "One in every 20 cars is unlocked at any given time."
4. Don't park your vehicle in unauthorized parking. "Pay $2 at a parking lot and be safe; 100 cars a day can be towed."
5. Don't think your beach blanket is safe left alone. "Hiding Keys or money under a beach blanket isn't new."
6. Read and obey the signs on the Beach. "No swimming in Rudee's Inlet; this is for your own safety."
7. Tell your children to go to a life guard if they get lost.

Equal Worth

The Civil Right Commissions recent rejection of the comparable worth concept, which calls for paying men and women equally for doing different jobs of similar value, has the critics hopping mad. Women's organizations and some labor unions see the action as yet another indication of the commission's full-scale retreat from the cause of civil rights — "an abomination," as the president of the National Organization for Women declared.

This criticism is understandable, for the commission's analysis is too sweeping; it ignores the utility of comparable worth studies in some job discrimination cases. Moreover, the commission's rhetoric has been needlessly inflammatory in dismissing what many thoughtful observers have termed the most important civil rights issue of the 1980's. Commission Chairman Clarence Pendleton was out of line in deriding comparable worth as "the looniest idea since 'Loony Tunes.'" But the commission's conclusion is basically right: Comparable worth should not be the benchmark of government policy.

There's no disputing the proposition that, even when a host of differences in their on-the-job careers are taken into account, working women earn less than men, and there's no argument that women workers are clustered in generally low-paying occupations. But the civil rights laws already on the books prescribe remedies for those wrongs. Men and women doing essentially the same job are entitled to equal pay, and the requirement of sex-blind equal opportunity requires opening up jobs that historically have been closed to one sex.

Comparable worth advocates go further, insisting that there be equal pay for jobs that are evaluated as similar in terms of skills, hardship and responsibilities — nurses and electricians, perhaps, or truck drivers and secretaries. Yet, as the commission points out in its report, there is no good way to make these apples-and-oranges comparisons. Job evaluation is about as scientific as alchemy.

This shouldn't keep employers and employees from bargaining over the question, for there are reasons, wholly apart from discrimination, why the wage gap between men and women should be narrowed. And, as the two dissenting commissioners argued, there is a place for job evaluation studies that an employer has already undertaken, then ignored, in litigation alleging sex discrimination.

All these fine points are obscured in a Civil Rights Commission report that too uncritically celebrates the marketplace. But the commission is right to urge that government generally not march under the comparable worth banner. The broad idea is too unwieldy — and its wholesome implementation would require far too much government intervention in wage-setting — to deserve official support. —C.E.C.

Hearing disorders

It's difficult to imagine being unable to hear someone calling your name or a telephone ringing, and as difficult to imagine not being able to talk to your friends at work or order a meal in a restaurant.

As tough as it is to picture yourself in these situations, it is a fact that about 22.6 million people in the United States suffer from some kind of hearing, speech, or language disorder. In fact, communication disorders are this nation's most common handicap.

Loss of full ability to hear, to use language, to speak, are collectively (and significantly) called communicative disorders.

The loss of ability to communicate—the loss of normal human interaction—is one of the most devastating and isolating handicaps. Yet many people with communicative disorders do not seek help for their problem.

May is Better Hearing and Speech Month, a time when concerned organizations and individuals across the country promote the early detection, proper treatment and prevention of hearing and speech impairments.

Most of the millions of people with hearing and speech problems can be helped—through medical treatment, surgery, amplification, or hearing and speech rehabilitation.

The earlier a problem is diagnosed and treatment begins, the better the chances for improvement, but it is never too late to get help. —C.E.C.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

I am so sorry to hear that the City of Virginia Beach is against having a Flea Market in our city. It was in a fine location that anyone could visit. The market was something for both the old and the young. It was a place to go on weekends where each day there were many different odd items that could not be found in other parts of the area. I get tired of going in the local malls, because it is the same old thing.

The Flea Market never showed me any problems or trouble in the years that it existed. It was well operated, and the people were the kindest I have met. The only problem that I have seen is that when parking spaces were full, the people would park along the fire lanes of the vacant building, and local police would write tickets to anyone who parked there, while anyone can go to Farm Fresh at Pembroke and cars are always parked along the fire lane day and night while they shop. I have never seen anyone get a ticket there or a car towed away.

I have a friend who opened a small business in Virginia Beach, and his permit was $25, while the vendors selling new items at the Flea Market had to pay $500 for a permit—unreal. I have never been to any other Flea Market where people had to pay such a fee to sell.

State taxes of 4 percent were paid by the vendors on what was sold, which went to the State, and this sales tax helped both State and City. There were nearby local businesses that also made profits from the hundreds of buyers that came to the Flea Market to look and buy.

I noticed that only certain items could be sold by the Blue Law on Sunday, while anyone can go down to the beach front and buy a drink or anything else there, along with the other food or drugstores in the area.

It seems that some people thought that the Flea Market was a bad look (sic) on the city. I don't know why. I see a lot of things worse to look at. All of the main roads in the city are loaded with street signs and car lots.

I was also sorry to read that the manager of Sears in Pembroke was happy to see the Flea Market go. I did not know that a Flea Market could hurt any of the approximately thousands of businesses in the city. Things must be getting bad in business. How can a junk flea market hurt anyone? After all, the market is only open two days a week.

I see various churches having Flea Markets. Are they not allowed anymore?

The old people don't wander to the beach, but they liked the Flea Market.

I have lived in Virginia Beach since 1963, and it was nice when I came here, but I have seen in the later years a lot of changes toward tourists, building going wild ahead of schools, utilities, etc. and keeping pace with feeding sand to the Atlantic Ocean.

I kind of like the Councilwomen. They seem to see what's going on and use common sense, but the Councilmen, well, we will be voting again.

So goes our only Flea Market to another city with their money. It's a shame that a few have caused this to happen.

Book punctures 3rd World medicinal fallacies

There used to be a movie cliché where the climax of the plot involved getting the vaccine to some remote place. I was left with the impression that tropical medicine consisted of carrying some wonderful high tech drug over the mountains and past the head hunters. This is not a belief that has much reality in the Third World.

Robert Desowitz is a professor of tropical medicine and advisor to the World Health Organization as well as a lucid and entertaining author. His book New Guinea Tapeworms &

Jewish Grandmothers makes me suspect that his classes are very popular. Desowitz mourns the lack of interest in parasitology but he has certainly taken steps to change that.

As the title suggests, this book uses anecdotes from Desowitz's career and from history to illustrate both how a particular disease spreads and how that spread has interacted with man-made changes in the environment. Anyone who wants to keep secure the belief that western advisors know more than primitive peoples should avoid the chapter "How the Wise Men Brought Malaria to Africa".

The author emphatically demonstrates that aid to developing countries, hydroelectric projects, new farming techniques, and especially reliance on medicine instead of sanitation can have a devastating impact on rural populations. He tells stories on how projects ranging from fishfarming to the Aswan High Dam have created just the environment needed for the mosquito, fly, or snail that carries debilitating disease.

Sunday cookout

On a Sunday during those summers of the late 1950s we always had a crowd at our house. The openhearted convivial nature of my parents encouraged frequent visits from family and friends. The fact that we lived on Lake Joyce, a placid body of fresh water, free of jellyfish and crabs helped to swell the crowds so that on any given Sunday while the sun shined we might have as many as twenty or so visitors on hand for a swimming party and cookout.

The house was situated on a point of land at the mouth of a man-made canal opening into the basin of the lake, our property extending around in a semicircle, providing a maximum of grassy waterfront.

My parents were in their early 40s then, as were most of the crowd they ran around with. Having been extraordinary ballroom dancers all of their lives, they had developed a set, including both relatives and friends, with whom they would go dancing until the band stopped, come home and roll up the rugs for more dancing, and finally top the evening with a huge breakfast.

When we moved to Princess Anne County the dancing crowd quite naturally adapted to one long summer cookout. The faces often changed but the core group consisted of John and Rose Scialdone and Carmen and Rose Pascaro, along with other assorted aunts, uncles and cousins.

Ed's notes

By Samuel

Martinette, Jr.

So it was that on Sunday afternoon I was hanging out with a few choice cousins in their near teens, like myself, while the adults relaxed about the back porch, tending the hot dogs and hamburgers while a dozen tiny kids swam in the canal.

Although the lake had no crabs to pinch your toes there was an abundance of motorboats, skiers, aquaplanes and other devices plying its surface. The rule was to cut back on the power when entering the canal, serving the dual purpose of allowing safe swimming and low wake, so as not to wash away one's yard.

But of course the important part was swimmer safety. One particular boat belonging to a neighbor across the canal made several high speed trips past our tiny swimmers and there developed a disagreement among the adults of the two parties concerning the safety of the swimmers versus the right of the boat's captain to dictate his own speed.

The disagreement escalated to heated words flung across the small canal. We youngsters stood quietly, having never seen the adults behave somewhat like us. Our side, being composed of several fiery Italian-Americans, insisted at length that the speeding boat must discontinue. Their side, equally vehement, insisted that someone would have to make them stop, and that whoever was ready for that ominous assignment should step forward at once. Both sides stood at the edge of their territory as insult gave way to taunt.

Suddenly my Uncle Carmen stood. A big, handsome man, more given to a funny story and a smooth line than the role of peacemaker, he kids were non-plussed as he strode from the patio without speaking and dove headfirst into the canal, crossing it with quick strong strokes. Both sides grew quiet as Carmen emerged from the water and crossed the yard to face the offending boat captain, who took a defensive stance, readying himself for battle, muscles rippling along his sun-bronzed arms.

My uncle grabbed the man's arms, pinning them to his side, pulled him up straight and kissed his cheek. The entire scene remains as frozen in my memory as the participants froze that day, while Carmen swam back home. Maybe neither side knew whether the kiss meant peace or war, but it did the trick. The battle was averted, the threats ceased and Sunday resumed.

Bayside hospital auxiliary to celebrate ten years

By Samuel Martinette, Jr.
VIRGINIA BEACH—When Ashley Anderson of Green Run High School and Robin Sanderlin of Kempsville High are introduced to The Auxiliary of Humana Hospital Bayside as scholarship winners at this Friday's Tenth Anniversary Party, Shirley Mulderrig will know that the organization has come a long way over the past decade.

"When we started out we had no money," Mulderrig said recently, "so we saved Proctor & Gamble coupons to raise money to make our first purchase for the hospital...a little red wagon for the pediatric department. This year we will allocate $4,500 in health related scholarships and gifts."

Shirley Mulderrig had good reason to smile when making her remarks. Having been a charter officer and a founder of the organization, she has been on hand to watch the group build from a handful of interested members to the present 115 member auxiliary.

Since its inception in 1975, the auxiliary has adhered to its stated purpose: "to render service to the Bayside Hospital and its patients, and to assist in promoting the health and welfare of the community through ways approved by, or proposed by, the Board of Trustees of the Hospital, and its executive director." A committee of founding members was authorized by the first hospital executive director, Kenneth Lacy, to establish an auxiliary and volunteer group.

That committee consisted of Shirley Mulderrig (at the time on the Hospital Board), Dee McCoy, Josephine Brechtelsbauer, Betty Holden, Lou Roper, Mary Vase, Mary DeFord, and Mary Dan Easton, of the Personnel Department. They were assisted by Virginia Association of Hospital Auxiliaries representative, Doris Gresham, in an advisory capacity. Two pre-organizational meetings were held in April, 1975, to plan for an Auxiliary-Volunteer unit, and to formulate By-laws, approved by the second hospital executive, Earl Holland, and Humana attorneys. On May 14, 1975 these By-laws were adopted, following a motion that the Auxiliary be established at the organizational meeting of the charter members. The work of the committee was thus accepted, and the Auxiliary was born.

On October 15, 1975, the membership elected the charter officers: Mae Belle Coussens, president, Shirley Mulderrig, vice president, Dee McCoy, recording secretary, and Annie Steinmetz, corresponding secretary. In their first year, they established an on-going Volunteer service of lay persons to assist at the hospital, (co-chaired by Shirley Mulderrig, and Mae Belle Coussens until 1977), and also a junior volunteer group under the supervision of Marilyn Boone.

"Our purpose today is no different than when we began," Mulderrig explained during a recent interview, "to engage exclusively as a non-profit organization for charitable and educational purposes."

Beach Strawberry Guide out

From now until early June, the Virginia Beach strawberry crop will be available at farmer owned roadside stands and for pick-your-own. While some yield reduction appears to be evident because of a late April freeze, the overall quality of the berries should be quite good.

The Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture has put together a list of pick-your-own and roadside stand strawberry producers in the City of Virginia Beach. Copies can be obtained at Virginia Beach Public Libraries or at the Agriculture Department Building at the Municipal Center. When traveling to a farm for pick-your-own strawberries, always call before going so as to be sure of exact picking dates and times. In addition, one should bring their own containers since they are not furnished at most operations.

NORFOLK—Called "a class act" executed with "simplicity and restraint," the Tidewater Virginian was singled out by the American Chamber of Commerce judges for the quality and expertise of its editorial, headed by Managing Editor Terri Denison.

Denison, 28, who has been the managing editor since 1981, will accept the A.C.C.E. Communications Award for the 1985 Outstanding Business Magazine on behalf of Tidewater Virginian at the organization's annual conference this week in Washington, D.C.

As a journalism student at the University of Maryland, Denison served a summer internship with the Tidewater Virginian in 1979, under the direction of Marilyn Goldman, then editor. Two years later, she was hired as an editorial assistant and rose to her present position within the first year of her employment with the magazine, when Goldman took over the magazine's operation as the executive editor.

Determining a financial plan

Some people have made definite financial plans. Others have not. Here is a simple method of helping you to determine if your financial plans need a review at this time. Answer the following simple questions as they relate to your own situation and see how you do:

- 1) I have had my life insurance needs thoroughly analyzed, and I know exactly how much insurance I need, and why.
- 2) I have a good estimate of how monthly income social security will pay my family if I died today.
- 3) I know (to the nearest $50 a month) what company (or personal) pension plan will pay me when I retire.
- 4) I have made out a will or have had it updated within the past three years.
- 5) My spouse has made out a will or has had it updated within the past three years.
- 6) I have a good estimate of what my estate and inheritance taxes, if applicable, will be.
- 7) I estimate my net worth regularly each year.
- 8) I have made specific, written notes as to the whereabouts of valuable documents, wills, trusts, insurance policies, etc., and have communicated this information to responsible family members.

Financial Planning and Investments By Madeline Fortunato

- 9) If I become totally disabled, I have set up an alternative source of income for myself and family.
 - 10) I have set up a plan which will help pay major medical expenses without jeopardizing my estate during my lifetime.
- If you have seven to ten "yes" answers, you can compliment yourself on having done an excellent planning job. But be sure to review your "no" answers, any one of these could be your Achilles' heel.
- If the number of your "yes" answers falls between two and seven, you are aware of financial planning needs, but, like many, you have tended to let such matters slide. Recognize the need for proper planning now.
- If your score is two or less, it is very important that you review each "no" answer with the objective of taking immediate action to change it to a "yes". In many instances, it is fairly simple in terms of time and money to convert a large number of "noes" to "yeses". But you are the one who has to take the first step.

RESORT CITY

Virginia Beach's Thunder Road

By Evan Sadler

Feet jumping and sensing delicious BBQ chicken are just a couple of sensations a person gets before walking into "Michael's," one of Tidewater's best country and western nightspots.

Michael's, founded in 1972, is most famous for their warm atmosphere and nightly specials.

Every Monday night Michael's present their $10,000 talent search. Each week a winner will walk away with $500 until August 8th, the final night, when the winner will gain $2,500.

Other nightly specials include Tuesday as the night for free dance lessons and free Texas-style chili. Wednesday nights are known for their "tight fitting jeans contest."

On top of nightly specials, Michael's has the pleasure of presenting "Thunder Road," a Virginia Beach band that has catered to the audiences of Michael's since 1980.

"Thunder Road," a six member band including Tim Buppert, drums, guitar and vocals; Diane Arae, vocals, guitar and keyboard; Don Carroll, keyboard, sax and vocals; Steve Sobecki, steel guitar, keyboard and vocals; Rick Hamilton, song writer, bass and vocals; and Marty Link, fiddle, mandolin, and vocals.

Thunder Road's music emphasizes the country scene but adds rock-pop to the band of music.

"We're about 90% country and 10% pop," said Carroll.

The blend of music has spelled out success for the group. In 1982, Thunder Road took first place in the WCMS/Wrangler Country Star Search Contest. They successfully defended their regional title the following year in the same Contest.

Thunder Road will be participating in the 14th annual "Fan Fair," in June, co-sponsored by Country Music Association and the Grand Ole Opry. The "Fan Fair" will give Thunder Road the opportunity to demonstrate their talents to a new audience.

Evan Sadler is a "Sun" free lance writer from Virginia Beach. He recently won the international and Virginia state award for VEMA in Video production.

"Thunder Road" — Tidewater's nationally acclaimed country-western band — "in house" at Michael's.

Thunder Road has also developed a new international fan club through the efforts of co-presidents Norman and Arlene Brookhart. The total of official fans numbers 262 including two in London, one in West Germany, Sweden, Taiwan and Switzerland.

The secret of the band's success has been keeping the audience moving with a new sound almost every night.

"The band puts a special effort in staying current rather than getting boring," said Hamilton.

Thunder Road performs six nights a week in the spacious and lively Michael's. Dancing and having a good time is one part that makes Thunder Road and Michael's an excellent couple.

Beginning May 26, Michael's entertains a circuit of national attractions with "Bobby Baer," Snuff" June 10-6. "Atlanta" June 30. Johnny Lee Sept. 2. Michael's is owned and operated by Beach Management.

Second annual

Strawberry time!

Pungo community celebrates heritage with fun & food

VIRGINIA BEACH—What does Earliglow, Premier, Red Chief, Fairfax, Pocahontas, Big Red and Ever Red have in common? These are just some of the varieties of strawberries you can come taste, see, and enjoy at the Second Annual Pungo Strawberry Festival scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, May 25-26, 1985.

Put together by the people who call Pungo home, the festival last year had over 20,000 people in attendance with plans being made this year to expand the festival to a two day event. Chairman Larry Joyner and the various committee chairmen are keeping the festival along the same lines as last year with plenty of home cooking, homemade crafts, live entertainment, games and a parade to keep the home town fairy atmosphere alive so everyone can have a good time.

The festival will be located in the southern end of Virginia Beach, with the center of activities once again being centered around the Pungo Shopping Center. To arrive at the festival area, located on Princess Anne Road, you can use Indian River Road, General Booth Boulevard or Princess Anne Road from the Virginia Beach Municipal Center complex, or drive from the resort area of Virginia Beach past Rudee Inlet.

Besides food to taste and enjoy, a craft show featuring homemade products from throughout the area will be open on both days. Games for the whole family to participate in or sit back and enjoy will be offered both days including pony rides. Live entertainment with several different musical groups will be set up to entertain visitors all day long from two separate stages. Displays will be operated by several local business and agricultural firms, including many different pieces of farm equipment used today and yesterday on the farm. Exhibits and experts from V.P.1 Extension Service and other groups will also be there to answer questions.

Contests including craft groups, from baking to the Perfect Berry Contest will be held along with the presentation of the Little Miss Strawberry Festival Pageant winner and the reign of the Miss Strawberry Festival 1985. All activity begins on Saturday, May 25, with a parade down Princess Anne Road from the Old Fair Grounds/Airfield to just past the Pungo Shopping Center, starting at 11 a.m. Floats, vintage cars, clowns, marching units, bands, horse groups and the contestants for the two Festival Pageants will be part of the parade.

Parking and transportation will be available to the festival area with shuttle service being planned from several different locations and nearby farms. For further information Sun readers should call or write to Pungo Strawberry Festival, 1771 Princess Anne Road, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23456, or call (804) 426-7289.

leave thousands of victims unable to work has contributed to a stereotype of laziness. Westerners, believing themselves superior to the people they were trying to help, have failed to take the local culture into account. Desowitz neatly punctures this attitude. Discussing the difficulty of getting a tribe in New Guinea to cook pork thoroughly, the governor says "You know, they are not like you and me. They are very primitive, and it is extremely difficult to change their customs even for their better health." Desowitz writes, "I was about to agree when I noticed that we were both smoking cigarettes."

The diseases themselves are fascinating. Not only are their life cycles incredibly complex, but there is growing evidence that some tropical diseases protect the sufferer from hypertension and other conditions of Western civilization. More than that, it is obvious that the reason so many exotic wild animals still survive in Africa is the tsetse fly. Domestic animals die so quickly from sleeping sickness that the "overgrazing, soil erosion, social disruption and faunal extinction" stop short at the fly belt. Desowitz suggests, "Until the time comes when scientists and their technical administrative partners appreciate the grand strategy of acting sanely and effectively to protect the well-being of all Africa's citizens, both two-legged and four-legged, we may applaud the cosmic wisdom that has made the tsetse, rather than man, Africa's custodian."

The investigation of the chain of events that has caused a particular epidemic is as suspenseful as a murder mystery. Anyone who enjoys reading about science will find this book hard to put down. Its importance is far greater than that, however. An understanding of medical conditions in the Third World and how Western nations have made things worse by applying temperate climate solutions to tropical problems is vital to making sensible decisions. It is no wonder that our advice is ignored and our politics scorned when we are remembered as the people who brought the plague.

Do you know hosta?

By Jay Mears

For gardening in the shade, few plants can compare to Hosta. This member of the lily family makes up a group of plants that are useful and attractive. They can adapt to a wide range of conditions and are extremely reliable. They are tolerant of almost any soil, very hardy, and can be grown under dense shade to sun. Although preferring a shady location they are quite adaptable to dry soil, making them very useful around the base of trees and shrubs.

Hostas are long lived perennials, coming back with more beauty and size than the year before. The plants are mound-shaped and feature large attractive leaves from light green to deep blue. There are also many varieties today with a wide range of variegated leaf forms ranging in size from just a few inches to over three feet.

Hostas are plants grown for their handsome foliage more so than their bloom. The flowers are very similar in each variety; a long stalk emerging from the center of the plant with several clusters of bell-shaped flowers along the top half of the flower stalk. Color ranges from some shade of violet-blue to white depending on variety with a few even being fragrant. However, hostas essentially are foliage plants and these summer-time flowers are of secondary importance.

This plant is one that has to be seen to be appreciated. They're easy to grow and are happiest in a moist rich soil. Hostas make good low hedges for use as a border plant such as lining a walk or driveway. They also make good accent plants in the flower bed. When used as a mass planting hostas make a most attractive groundcover. They are easy to grow, being disease free and have few insect problems. Their beauty spans over a long season, from spring, when they first emerge from the soil, to fall, with our first frost.

There are many varieties and forms of hosta available today. A few of my favorites that you may want to try this year include: Golden Crown - a gold edged fast growing variety reaching about 20 inches in height by 36" wide. Frances Williams - handsome plant with beautiful blue-green foliage with wide golden yellow borders, reaches 25" high by 36" wide. A true accent plant. Royal Standard - Another large growing variety (24"H x 36"W) with rich green foliage bearing fragrant white flowers in mid summer. This one will tolerate more sun than most.

State must match grant

City pledges 1 1/2M to Art Center

VIRGINIA BEACH—City Council next Monday will consider a resolution allocating $1 1/2 million as a challenge grant for the construction of the Virginia Beach Arts Center.

The funding would be used to match, dollar for dollar, a financial commitment from the General Assembly.

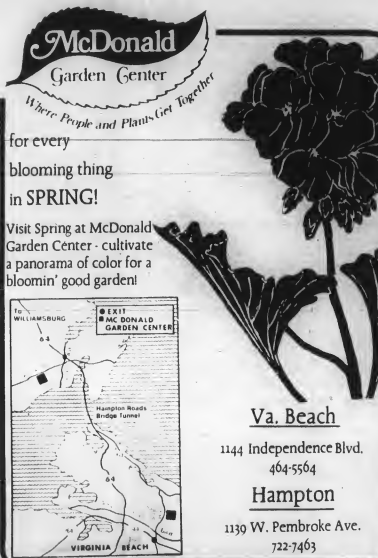

The grant was not included in the new Operating budget but will be considered at a later date.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley said she was concerned that the money might be needed for something else, like roads.

Councilman Robert Pentress said that Council action is necessary now because the General Assembly committee is now considering the State's contribution.

Mayor Harold Heschober recommended the resolution saying the city is not committing itself, but saying that if the State contributes, the city will also.

Councilman Louis R. Jones said he would hate to lose the State allocation because Council fails to make a decision.

Hospital Auxiliary conducts tours, contributes to community feeling good communications with the public as a goodwill ambassador for the hospital, as well as trying to make things easier for the patients."

One of the many things the Humana Hospital-Bayside Auxiliary does to make life easier for patients is to operate a gift shop for their use and that of their families. The shop is operated seven days and five nights a week by Peggy D'Amora and a crew of 17 auxiliary volunteers.

"We also make up special trays for the patients on holidays like Thanksgiving, Mother's Day and Christmas," Mulderrig added. "And we try and help indigent patients through the Division of Social Services by providing taxi money, food or other basics."

"Sometimes elderly patients go home to nothing. Whenever Social Services feels a patient has a need, they let us know and we disburse money for that purpose."

Hospital tours and blood pressure screening clinics are also conducted by auxiliarians. Along with this year's two scholarship awards, the auxiliary will donate $2,500 to the City School Board designated for the purchase of equipment to aid in a Pilot program monitoring blood pressure among seventh and ninth graders.

Shirley Mulderrig admitted that convincing people that a for-profit hospital needed an auxiliary wasn't always easy.

"But the fact remains that it's our neighborhood hospital," Mulderrig asserted. "The difference is that this hospital pays taxes to the City...quite a bit, in fact. I don't see where profit should make a difference so long as you get quality service."

Dues for the organization are $5 per year, with a $10 Honorary Membership available for those who cannot contribute time, but would like to participate. The main fundraisers are a yearly plant and bake sale in April and a luncheon fashion show normally held in September.

Current officers are: Ruth Weaver-president; Aileen Morrissey-secretary; Lesley Frasher-treasurer and Mary Buzzy-corresponding secretary.

"It's a rewarding job," Mulderrig asserted, "you feel like you're doing something for someone else."

This Friday those who do for someone else will gather at Humana Hospital Bayside - the original and present-day Board of Trustees, the remaining charter members, past presidents and present Auxiliary officers and current hospital administrators - and will celebrate a decade of service from the auxiliary.

"We're going to toast our auxiliary membership," Shirley Mulderrig explained. "We're going to have a fun time for two hours and celebrate ourselves. We're having a party!"

No points. No fees. Low rate.
That's a home equity loan to make any owner smile.

Like a lot of homeowners, you've probably been hearing how easy it is to go to your bank for the cash you need for new cars, vacations, home improvement or whatever, simply by borrowing against the equity in your home.

But, like a lot of homeowners, you may also have found out that what looks easy at some banks can also be costly.

13.5 APR. FIXED 10 YEARS.
12.99 APR. FIXED 5 YEARS.

Not at First American. We don't believe in charging "points"—those up-front charges some banks collect for a low rate.

Starting today, and for a limited

PLUS THE SAVINGS OF SIMPLE INTEREST.

In fact, we don't even build in front-loaded interest charges and prepayment penalties, like a lot of banks.

We charge straight simple interest. Which means you can reduce your loan interest charges by prepaying (before your monthly due date) your loan. For example, if your payment is due the 15th of the month and you pay by the 10th, you save 5 days' interest charges on the amount you'd normally pay. This can mean significant savings to you.

Plus there's no penalty for paying your loan off in advance.

Fair's fair. That's the way we offer Home Equity loans at First American.

No points. No fees. No fooling around. And plain old simple interest.

There's not a more favorable way to get your cash equity credit out of your home, unless you've got money hidden under the loose floorboard in the parlor.

Come in and let us show you how easy, and reasonable, banking can be.

City seeks stormwater proposal

By Lee Cahill

CITY COUNCIL REPORTER
VIRGINIA BEACH—City Council has voted unanimously to hire a consultant to develop a comprehensive stormwater management plan for the city.

However, the city staff was cautioned in seeking proposals to make sure the consultant is in a position to be objective.

Councilman John A. Baum said that in the past some of the city's consultants also have been consultants for applicants or developers who might be affected by the consultants' studies. He said that the city ends up with a conflict of interest.

Baum said he remembers one incident when a developer was filling in a swamp where the developer was found to have the same consultant as the city.

The selection of a developer must be done very carefully, he said.

City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck asked whether the staff was being asked not to solicit proposals from local consultants.

Baum did not go the whole way to recommend that, but said he was "leery". He said he also wants to know that the consultants have had experience elsewhere.

City Engineer Donald Trublood recommended that no one be excluded from the bidding process. He said that the city has procedures for selection of a consultant. He said that major national firms have indicated an interest in the project.

Muehlenbeck said that it is sufficient that the staff is aware of Council's concerns and Council voted unanimously to accept proposals from consultants.

Back home, the restaurant business got busy and Worrell forgot about the feat—well, almost. "After awhile, you forget the bad and remember the good," he said. Mike started thinking about a race, but this time sailing the opposite way, starting in Florida and finishing just a few blocks from the restaurant. "In the context of the times, there's no good reason this race should be what it is. It was a crazy idea—so radical from what sailboat racing was at the time. Had I come up through the ranks of organized racing, I would have known it was supposed to fail."

But it didn't. The first challenge was extended through a tiny ad in a sailing magazine in 1976. Five teams entered; Mike Worrell's won. "I almost discarded the idea after the first year. There were only two-man teams and no support crews. The team that won was the team that could get by on the least amount of sleep."

The idea wasn't discarded. Fine-tuning through the years has made the event even bigger, safer and more challenging. It also has become Mike Worrell's obsession. "It's a lot like the motel and restaurant business. You just do the best job in building it as big as you can. The race is a challenge to put together, a challenge to see grow."

Worrell, who won three of the first four competitions, hasn't raced in the grueling event since 1979. "Winning, nobody remembers that stuff. It's a nice accomplishment, but nothing to dwell on. But building this race—now that's not a fleeting thing."

"I pity people who don't have obsessions, who go home at night and plop in front of a television set, who can't wake up in the morning with their phone ringing with a sailor from South Africa on the other end," Worrell said. Worrell, the father of a 16-year-old son and two-year-old daughter, has even bigger plans for the Worrell 1000. He envisions a large cash prize some day and perhaps franchises to foreign countries. "Frankly, I don't know how big the race can get."

"True, honest sport is not in winning," Mike Worrell concluded, "it's in the effort."

we were teenagers—always!" she said. "We've been coming for every summer, ever since."

There are many reasons to come to the Beach but the most common reason is the Beach itself.

"I like the sandy white beaches," said Susan McNeill, Philadelphia, Penn. "It's enough beach; sometimes you go to those spots where there are only secluded areas or you're not allowed in other areas."

Paul and Carolyn Baden, from Brandy Wine, Maryland, think the beaches are pretty but are not used to so much congestion. Usually vacationing at Ocean City, they feel that the Beach here is great for walking on.

"The Beach is my very favorite place," said Carolyn Lawrence.

"I love relaxing in the sun, it gives me a chance to read and enjoy the people. It is very peaceful to me, even in the winter."

I found Alan McCullum, 10, from New York City, having a grand time racing with the waves, enjoying his get-away from the big city. "The water is too cold to swim in for me but I like to build sand castles. Me and my dad are going to build one today."

Along with the residents, a few tourists are none too happy about the traffic and crowds on Atlantic Avenue. The Badens found it impossible to get from one side of the street to the other. Little McCullum felt the "trucks with big wheels" made too much noise. But other tourists love the hustle and bustle of the Avenue. Kelly Brenner feels there is always something to do and always interesting people to watch. Lawrence, the veteran visitor, thinks Atlantic Avenue is entertaining, and the Badens aren't sure what to think of it all.

Visitors do not just visit Virginia Beach while they're here, other attractions in Virginia contribute to their stay. Mixon and the Lampkins had just returned from a morning at the Waterside in Norfolk. "It was very interesting, we went down where the boats dock and watched the tour boat, Spirit dock," said Nannette Lampkin.

McNeill enjoyed her trip to Busch Gardens. "The beer gardens were great, the people in costumes were fun, but the Big Bad Wolf scared the living-daylights out of me," she said laughing.

Tourists seem to be in agreement that the Beach is beautiful and the Virginia Beach residents are hospitable. Most enjoy the crowds and busy streets, the endless numbers of signs and souvenir shops.

The tourists are satisfied. Will they come back?

Well, the Beach has received one more permanent resident, Kelly Brenner. Carolyn Lawrence and her husband already have hotel reservations for July. Deborah Mixon plans to return this summer with her 14 year old child, and Susan McNeill can't wait to return but has to make some money first!

Virginia Beach receives a pat on the back. Tourism—the second largest industry is and will continue to be a success. A job well done!

In Worrell 1000

VIRGINIA BEACH—Ted Torok, owner of Sandwich Island restaurant in Virginia Beach, has announced plans to sponsor the Olympic Silver Medalist team of Randy Smyth and Jay Glaser in the Worrell 1000 long distance sailing race. Along with their impressive finish in the Tornado catamaran yachting class at the Olympic games in Los Angeles this summer, active Californians Smyth and Glaser have wracked up an impressive string of victories in national and world level catamaran races over the past five years. "They're winners," Torok commented, "and we think they'll be the team to beat during this year's Worrell 1000."

Since opening the first Sandwich Island restaurant in February of this year, Torok has been active in community promotions. Sandwich Island

Olympic Silver Medalists Randy Smyth (R) and Jay Glaser join the Worrell 1000 field as Smyth will skipper the Sandwich Island entry.

currently offers a scholarship program for college bound high school seniors and is developing a program for contributing to the Special Olympics. "The Worrell represents a fun event for us to be involved in. It's the premier sporting event in Virginia Beach, and that is where Sandwich Island originated," Torok said.

Beach residents join Scout Council

NORFOLK—Five Virginia Beach residents were recently elected to the board and nominating committee of Colonial Girl Scout Council.

Muriel Alderman, retired director of the Family Enrichment Program, became Council president, and Beach City Council woman Reba McClanan joined the Girl Scout Nominating Committee.

Elected for two-year board terms were Jim Banks, vice president, Atlantic National Bank, Captain Robert Brenton, USN retired, and Girl Scout volunteer Judy Franz.

As board and nominating committee members, the Beach residents will help set the direction for 13,000 Girl Scouts in Hampton Roads.

Vote precincts added

VIRGINIA BEACH—Six new precincts have been added in Virginia Beach under an ordinance approved Monday afternoon by City Council.

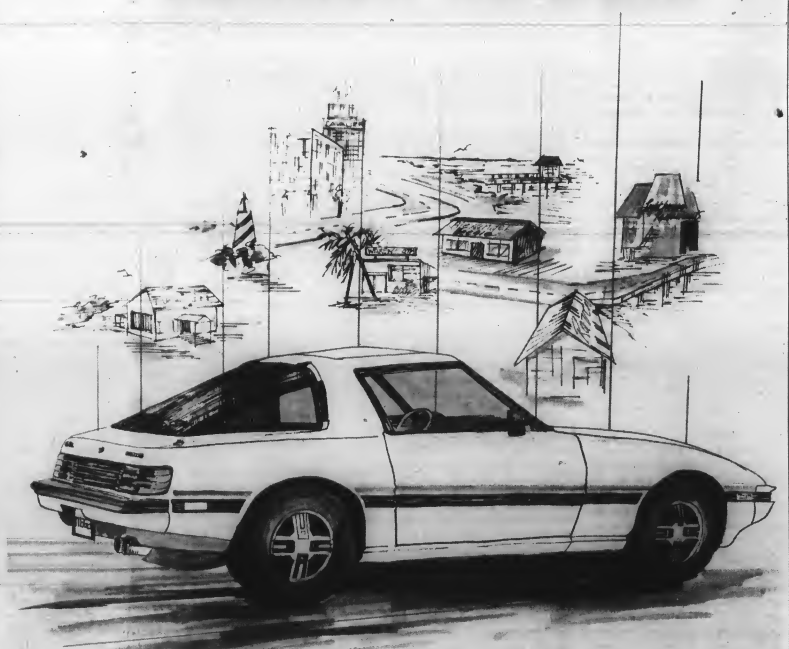

The new precincts are Homestead at the Providence Presbyterian Church at 5497 Providence Road; Shannon, at Eastern Shore Elementary School, 570 Kempville Road; Salem at the Word of Life Christian Center, 4101 Princess Anne Road; Magic Hollow at the Roma Lodge, 3097 Magic Hollow Building; and Little Neck at King's Grant Presbyterian Church, 745 Little Neck Road.

The ordinance also changes the locations of two precincts, Linkhorn to the Evangelical Lutheran Church, and Wolfsnare to the Eastern Shore Chapel, and changes the name of the location of the Aragona Precinct to the Adult Learning Center.

Boundary lines also are changed for five precincts—College Park, Oceana, London Bridge, Aragona and Providence.

Man of the Year

NEW YORK, N.Y.—Dr. M. G. (Pat) Robertson, founder and president of The Christian Broadcasting Network, Inc., and host of the news and information TV show, "The 700 Club," was recently presented with the Man of the Year award by the Women's National Republican Club.

The award is "for distinguished efforts in reviving the moral values of the American public" and was presented at the WNRC's annual luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York City.

CBN, based in Virginia Beach, has programming in 66 nations on five continents. "The 700 Club" is available to 90 percent of all U.S. television homes in all 50 states and the District of Columbia on about 190 broadcast affiliates and CBN Cable Network, "The Family Entertainer," now wired into more than 28 million homes via 5,400 cable systems.

Besides heading CBN and hosting "The 700 Club," Robertson is chancellor of graduate-level CBN University, also in Virginia Beach.

Robertson was one of seven people honored because their "talent, integrity and knowledge are examples of the best in leadership," a club spokesperson said.

Other honorees were entertainer Ginger Rogers, diva Renata Scott, editor Helen Gunley Brown, Senator Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., LeGree Daniels, chairwoman of the National Black Republican Council, and James H. Van Allen, founder of the National Tennis Foundation and Hall of Fame.

In the early 1900s, Virginia Beach played second fiddle to Ocean View—the "in" place of its day, according to a feature article in the May issue of Country magazine, the mid-Atlantic regional monthly.

Pat Robertson

Ocean View's main attraction was an amusement center opened by the Wells brothers in 1901. A railroad which ran from Norfolk to the resort made the area accessible to city-dwelling beach goers.

By the 1920s, though many of the Big Bands were regularly playing in packed ballrooms, Ocean View was on its way out, according to Country. Sun worshippers were starting to venture down to Virginia Beach, instead. With the installation of the first concrete boardwalk in 1927 and the opening of the Great Cavalier Hotel, tourists began flocking to the area.

The Big Bands soon followed. In the late 1930s, Rudy Vallee, Tommy Dorsey, Guy Lombardo, and even Frank Sinatra, would often play the Cavalier.

Though World War II dimmed the lights of the resort (brownouts and blackouts were defense necessities), the dancing went on, reports Country.

The end of the War brought developers to the beach resort, wiping out the old cottages and bringing in new hotels and motels. The Ash Wednesday Storm of 1962 wiped out even more of the old Virginia Beach, says Country, making way for the resort of today.

The May issue of Country is available on selected newsstands for $1.95 or by writing to the publisher, P. O. Box 246, Alexandria, VA 22313.

Remember the Vets

By Anthony F. Chiffole

Special To The Sun

"We are the World" means that we individuals can help to solve mankind's problems. It also means that helping others is a duty we cannot ignore.

Though we help other people, we question how much we can give and how much we should interfere. Witness our confusion over the problems in Central America. Poverty afflicts many of our neighbors there. Tyranny destroys them further. Giving them only bread and water, do we merely prolong the starvation of the human spirit, or should we also help them to win their freedom? We yet fear a repetition of the no-win confrontation in Vietnam. Eventually, we rationalized our withdrawal from Southeast Asia, perceiving no direct threat to our own liberty. Can we so rationalize Central America?

Can we rationalize losing our soul?

The soul of the United States of America is Freedom. Like very few other people in the world, we enjoy freedom of speech, of worship, of the press. We have the right to assemble and to bear arms. Most importantly, we have freedom of thought and of conscientious action.

Freedom, however, is not something you pick up from the sidewalk like a lucky penny. As Thomas Paine wrote in The American Crisis, "Heaven knows how to put a proper price upon its goods; and it would be strange indeed, if so celestial an article as Freedom should not be highly rated." America did not emerge merely by asserting our independence from England: our ancestors bled for our freedom. Again and again, in the American Revolution, the War of 1812, the Civil War, the World Wars, our freedom was in danger, and we fought and died for the liberty that we cherish so dearly. Franklin Delano Roosevelt expressed our passion: "We, and all others who believe as deeply as we do, would rather die on our feet than live on our knees."

Because other nations believe in liberty as passionately as we, we have many times fought to defend our friends' freedoms, in Europe and Asia during the World Wars, in Korea, in Vietnam, in Lebanon. We offer them our blood because we are committed to freedom and, in a greater sense, to what is right. We are a nation "under God," and He commanded us, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." As we treasure and defend our own liberty, so must we treasure and defend our neighbors', helping our friends secure freedom of speech and of worship, freedom from fear and from want. The "We are the World" group helps to unchain our neighbors from their hunger; the American military helps unchain our neighbors from other forms of oppression.

In no way does this commitment mean that the military is cruising for a fight. One of the lessons I recall most vividly from the Naval Academy concerns the role of our military in the modern world. We learned that we are a deterrent force: if we must resort to open combat, we have, in a sense, failed. At the same time, we are a reactive force, prepared to march or sail or fly against tyranny anywhere. We have, like the singers of the Declaration of Independence, pledged "our Lives, our Fortunes, and our sacred Honor" to the concept of Freedom. War terrifies military people: we know the heat of suffering and the cold of death firsthand, and we do not find any glory there. We deprecate war and seek to avoid it; but we firmly believe the words of the Code of Conduct: "I am an American fighting man. I serve in the forces which guard my country and our way of life. I am prepared to give my life in their defense. ... I will trust in my God and in the United States of America."

We Americans once betrayed that trust. As a country, we refused to honor or even to acknowledge those men and women who died for freedom's sake in Vietnam. Though we, as a predominantly Christian nation, continue to believe Jesus Christ's words, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends," we exonerated those who fought alongside our friends in Vietnam.

Our military did not forget our commitment. For freedom's sake, our soldiers bled to death in mine-fields. Our pilots suffered

Students study government

VIRGINIA BEACH—For one day in April, seventy-six Virginia Beach secondary students got a close-up look at how the city and school administration operated.

The event was the first "Official for a Day" program sponsored by the school division's Student Activities department and the Virginia Beach Student Cooperative Association. It was held to observe National Student Leadership Week. The students were paired with 67 city and school administration officials and spent the day learning about the officials' jobs and how they functioned in the administration.

Earlier in the month, city and school division officials were asked if they would sponsor a student leader and participate in the program. Sixty-seven responded. To give more student leaders a chance to participate, some of the officials agreed to sponsor more than one student.

The students met their "official" at the School Board room on the morning of Friday, April 26. After a brief welcome by division superintendent Dr. E. E. Brickell and city manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck, the students and their sponsors left for a day of "on-the-job" training. The day concluded with a banquet for all participants at the Ramada Inn at the oceanfront.

City officials participating included Vice-Mayor Reba McClannan, who hosted Marlene Mitchell, SCA president of First Colonial High; City Manager Thomas Muehlenbeck, hosting Mike Schroeder, SCA president of Green Run High; and Aubrey Watts, deputy city manager for development, hosting his daughter, Barbara, a sophomore at Kellam High. Other match-ups included Giles Dodd, assistant city manager for administration, and Cindy Foy, Kellam High; Hector A. Rivera, assistant city manager for human services, and Julie Bird, Princess Anne High; E. Dean Block, assistant-city manager for analysis and evaluation, and Chris Pope, Kempville High; and Commonwealth's Attorney Paul Sciorino, hosting David Eun, SCA president of Cox High.

School division officials included Dr. Brickell, hosting Clint

Carroll, SCA president at Kellam High and city-wide SCA chairman; and deputy superintendent E. Bruce McGuire, hosting Anne Slaughter, next year's SCA president of Kempville High. Assistant superintendents Fred G. Benham, E. Carlton Bowyer, and Walter N. Carroll, hosted

Virginia Beach Arts Center kicks off annual drive

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia Beach Arts Center has announced that Mrs. James R. McKenry and John Shackelford have been named co-chairpersons for the 1985 Annual Giving Campaign. This year's campaign will kick off in Mid-May and continue through June 30.

Ten committee members will solicit funds from the public through letter writing and personal contacts.

The main thrust of this campaign will be to generate funds to operate the Center located at 1711 Arctic Avenue. The money raised will help defray the costs for the monthly exhibits, studio school, and the summer arts camp for young people.

Sun readers desiring further information regarding programs at the Center should call 425-0000.

Virginia splashes into June with two major waterfront festivals highlighting more than three dozen special events across the state. Norfolk's June 7-9 Harborfest will combine sailboat and speedboat races, tall ships and ship tours with a festive parade, skydiving, waterskiing and military demonstrations. The Alexandria Red Cross Waterfront Festival (pictured above) June 14-16, will feature sailing ships, cruises, marine exhibits and a 10K race, along with a wide variety of foods, art, fireworks and more. In the western part of the state, two outstanding music festivals get under way in June, the Ash Lawn-Highland Opera Festival in Charlottesville, June 19-August 18, and the Garth Newell Chamber Music Fest in Hot Springs, June 30-September 1.

Toll road dangers

Some time back there appeared on this page a column intended to be humorous, concerning the debris which drivers encounter on a regular basis while using Virginia Beach roads, especially the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway—commonly known as the Beach Toll Road.

In that column an attempt was made to make light of the dangers encountered from flying rocks, cascading dirt, discarded auto parts and miscellaneous lumber, shoes and assorted household goods.

But let there be no mistake. There is little humor in having your windshield cracked, your tires flattened and your automobile scarred. Put aside the pride one might feel in keeping an auto polished, painted and generally well-kept. Consider the dangers inherent in high speed vehicles dodging and weaving to avoid expressway trash—said maneuvers performed on a crowded roadway already populated by frustrated drivers, many of whom are disregarding established speed limits.

Consider also the additional expense in repairs and insurance when your vehicle becomes the casualty of a "road hazard," as flying debris kicked up by a moving vehicle is known.

That debris has come from somewhere.

Some of the fault lies with construction vehicles driven by workers with disdain for those who share the highway with them. The law calls for the covering in an open load with a tarp, a procedure that some drivers apparently consider too, time consuming to bother with. Some of the fault lies with the police officers who patrol that highway—for failure to enforce the tarp regulation. Granted there are more serious crimes committed every day in Virginia Beach, but danger on the highway is no laughing matter.

Virginia Beach, Norfolk and State Police officers should pay closer attention to a flagrant violation of a serious matter, and see fit to issue the appropriate summons. Hitting errant drivers in the pocketbook would seem to be the fastest way to curb a dangerous nuisance.—S.M.

That's Ingenuity

We don't think that rock music can claim to be serious art, though we do acknowledge that it is a powerful economic force. No one knows this better than a group of American rock stars called "USA for Africa." These energetic singers have donated their time and energy and have produced a song that has been coining cash for African famine victims.

The tune, entitled "We Are the World," was written by two bona fide superstars, Lionel Richie and Michael Jackson. Some of the group's 43 other personalities include Billy Joel, Cyndi Lauper, Kenny Rogers, Tina Turner, Huey Lewis, Bruce Springsteen, Diana Ross and Bob Dylan. The lyrics are sweetly naive; the refrain is "We are the world, we are the children/We are the ones who make a better day so let's start given." Interestingly, the song is riddled with cameo solos by stars whose identities have occasioned a national version of musical "Trivial Pursuit."

The receipts, though, are not trivial: The single sold 1.3 million copies in only ten days, making one of the highest debuts on the music-industry record charts in the last decade and a half. The piece has received quite a lot of airtime on soft rock, mainstream rock and, surprisingly, hard rock stations. As well, record stores report considerable clamor for the single. Accompanying the release have been some accessories that included a one-hour video of the recording session, a television special, T-shirts, a paperback book and signed posters. In addition, several rockers—Prince, Linda Ronstadt, and Pat Benatar—not able to attend what is now rightly billed as a historic sing-along are dedicating the proceeds from heretofore unreleased originals to the "USA for Africa" group.

The bottom line on "We Are the World" is estimated by project coordinator Harry Belafonte to be $50 million. Contrast that amount with the paltry $7 million the Soviet Union has sent to Africa. Ninety percent of the U.S. donations will go to Africa, while the remaining 10 percent will be donated to relief agencies serving the poor in this country.

Besides being a commercial leviathan, the "USA for Africa" project is a superb example of young American savvy, ingenuity and generosity.—C.E.C.

Dealing with crime and criminals

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

Many of our politicians don't have their priorities right when it comes to dealing with crime.

They seem to think that failure to fasten a seatbelt in our cars is a dastardly felony indeed, that must be stopped at all costs. No doubt after this legislative exercise in big brotherism is over we will next turn to legislation requiring us to wear our overshoes when it rains.

Seatbelts are not the only "solution" to violent crime we have seen our politicians come up with recently. No doubt one of the most awesome efforts to combat muggings and other violent crimes occurred in New York when 1300 policemen were detailed to apprehend Bernhard Goetz, the victim.

Cook County, Illinois has been the scene of an even more recent capture of a victim by the authorities. Philip Roos, the administrative director of the Christian Liberty Academy Satellite Schools was frustrated by the Cook County Sheriff department's repeated failures to apprehend a Peeping Tom who had been frightening his daughters.

In February of this year, it happened again. Roos and his wife called the Sheriff while he took his loaded .38 Smith & Wesson for protection as he went outside to try and catch the pervert. The Peeping Tom fled, and as Roos walked down the street in search of the criminal, the police arrived.

Roos was told by the policeman pointing a gun at him to put his gun on the ground. Roos replied that the crook was getting away. The policeman responded, "Drop it, or you're dead." Roos quickly complied.

After the police captured Roos, they handcuffed him and took him to the precinct for booking. Happily, the charges were dropped when Roos went to court.

Politicians for too long have pressured the police to catch victims instead of criminals. It is time for Americans to be encouraged to carry firearms, not be discouraged. And it is not time to send the police out after "seatbelt bandits" while real crooks are breaking faces and lives.

Grave Sayings: Living Thoughts

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

Every place has its memorials and gravestones! I am collecting material for a theme: the working title is "Grave Sayings: Living Thoughts."

In your area, somewhere in the cemetery, is that unique saying.

Clearly, it is physically difficult for me to search for the inscriptions everywhere in the USA. For this reason I am asking you and your readers for assistance in gathering them.

The only compensation I can offer for the effort is to mention the name and documentation of the contributor (an article, a picture, a personal observation) whenever the inscription is used.

Thanking you in advance.

British mysteries are so polite!

What is it about British mysteries, in particular those in series, which makes them so endearing? Perhaps the emphasis on the intellectual unravelling, rather than a more American attention to gore and violence. One is charmed by a Miss Marple, a Hercule Poirot or a Lord Peter Wimsey. I don't think the same can be said for Mickey Spillane. The reader of English mysteries is invited to give full rein to a galloping anglophilia, thereby satisfying an internal longing for hedgerows, misty fields, tea cozies and other solidly British images. English mysteries project an ambience full of eccentricity and homeliness and we become one of the family as we reach for title after title.

One such detective is John Mortimer's Horace Rumpole. I managed to miss him on public television and decided to read one of the series only as it was in the library's new book delivery recently and I was also in my cyclical panic about what to write about in this column. It had many things going against it: it was a mystery first of all; it was written in the first person, a personal although unreasoned dislike; and I was not reading the series in the correct order. Within a few pages, however, I had overcome, or rather forgotten, all of these concerns.

Horace is a true delight. In Rumpole and the golden thread, he has returned to the Temple's Equity Court after an earlier attempt at retirement with his wife Hilma, more often known as She See POLITE, page 7.

Elsewhere on this page, you'll find what we think and what our columnists and cartoonists think. But what, we ask, do you think?

What do you think about our fair city? Our police department? Our schools? Downtown redevelopment? The city manager? City Council? What about the Mayor, the governor, the sheriff, our delegates in the General Assembly, our representatives on Capitol Hill or, for that matter, anything else on your mind?

We want to hear from you and give you the chance to share your opinions with others. Write us a letter and tell us what you think about the world around us or about the newspaper itself.

We don't care what you write about. You're entitled to your opinion, and that's what this page is for—to provide a forum for your expression. On the air!

The AM studio was almost like an old fashioned broadcasting booth, in that you stood before a dead microphone while the deejay finished his rap and introduced you. The idea was to read through the copy you had written, pronouncing it aloud to prevent stumbles, arrange it in the order you wanted it, lick your lips and try to forget that thousands of listeners were out there fingers poised on the dial, waiting to zap you into the ozone if you blundered.

These were the thoughts racing through my mind as I stood nervously clearing my throat, yellow canary par rustling in my sweaty hands, blank eyes staring through the soundproof glass.

How did I come to find myself about to go on live radio as a newscaster?

I had only recently closed a dying weekly newspaper down, in fact had given the word to pull the plug on The Courier, an entertainment paper distributed free in the Hampton Roads area. One of the freelancers I had been using was Brian Lehrer, then news director at WNOR Radio. When he heard about the demise of the paper Brian called me to write news copy for the on-air folks for a couple of weeks.

My copy was successful and I found the temporary job stretching from week to week and myself outfitted with tape recorder and mike, trooping around Tidewater in search of "actualities," or taped quotes to use with stories I would write. I suppose it was a natural step to send me into the studio.

Ed's notes

By Samuel Martinette, Jr.

One afternoon, about ten minutes before the 3 p.m. broadcast the boss turned to me and inquired whether I had finished writing my copy. Was I satisfied with it?

Good, I was told, because I would be delivering it myself, live, on the radio.

Live! On the air! Now?

I nestled the earphones down over my ears and listened...all of a sudden his finger was pointing and his mouth closed. I was on!

So there I stood before a soon to be live mike, waiting for the signal to go on, a signal that would light up the sign over the studio door warning all others to stay out, wondering how I would do, cursing my quavering voice and my desire to stammer.

Piece of cake, I told myself, easy as pie.

I nestled the earphones down over my ears and listened to the jock introduce me when all of a sudden his finger was pointing and his mouth closed. I was on.

Why no one warned me about hyperventilating, I'll never know. Perhaps it's a tradition to shout at newspaper editors onto the air and listen to them squirm. All I recall is how hard it was to catch my breath and read at the same time. Each word seemed weighted with a thousand pounds of drag. Each breath seemed to drop with a boom on the open microphone and I could imagine my listeners being deafened by my popping p's, which sounds appear to rival a gong when monitored through headphones.

But radio is quick, if merciless. I survived, indeed went on to do two more years of feature and entertainment pieces on both AM and FM. They called it "The Golden Frog" in honor of my unusual delivery. Ah, show business.

Miss Weyers goes to Washington

In which the young poet reads her work to the DAR

By Heather Weyers
Special To The Sun

Ed. note: Heather Weyers is a student in the Virginia Beach Public School system and came to the attention of the Virginia Beach Sun through her connection with Judy Connors and the Daughters of the American Revolution. In April the DAR sponsored a national "Liberty Love Day" in order to raise funds to aid in the restoration of the Statue of Liberty. Weyers had written a poem in honor of Lady Liberty and the Sun published that work, leading to the young lady being invited to read her poem in Washington's Constitution Hall, before the assembled members of the DAR's National Convention. What follows is her view from the podium.

Will I mess up? Will I stutter? Will I remember all of the important people's names? Will I remember mine?

These questions ran through my mind while I was sitting in front of a few thousand people. I glanced around Constitution Hall. The huge walls were edged with the seal of each state. Behind me large blue curtains with gold stars formed a backdrop. Above the curtain peered a painting of the American eagle with the first American flags clutched in his talons.

All of a sudden, I was awakened by the blaring sound of a trumpet reveille. I looked up and found myself sitting beside an elderly woman wearing gloves and playing a small golden trumpet. The meeting had begun.

How high is that great ceiling? Is my dress on straight? Don't cross your legs. Don't look anywhere except at the speaker. And as they say, don't let them see you sweat! Oops, another fingernail broken! Well, I guess I'll just hide it in my program. When is my life going to flash before my eyes? Could they turn that spotlight down a bit? Oh, my gosh, there's no feeling in my knees. Uh, oh, here it comes again! Why am I yawning so much? I'm not bored, so I must be hyperventilating! Just watch me pass out in front of all of these people.

All of a sudden, I was awakened by the blaring sound of a trumpet reveille. I looked up and found myself sitting beside an elderly woman wearing white gloves and playing a small golden trumpet. The meeting had begun.

The President General, Mrs. King (whose name I had forgotten at the moment) called the meeting to order. After the invocation, the colorguard marched through the aisles as a great American flag rolled down from the ceiling. The pledge was said and the audience recited the American's Creed, which I had heard but could not remember. This was a tight situation for me in front of all these people, so I studied one lady's lips and just moved my mouth the way she did. Aha, tricked them again! We sang the first stanza of the National Anthem - easy! But the organist kept on playing. I knew what was coming. We had to sing the fourth stanza too. When in school did I learn this? Never. I didn't even know there was more to the song. I kept my cool and did the great ventriloquist routine again.

Next, came the address by the President of the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation, Mr. May. This was no address, more like a lesson in history. I drifted into dreamland again. My eyes flew like a breeze over the calm ocean of people. I found that most of them were women over the age of...well, since I am fourteen, everyone seems old to me.

Most of the women wore long sashes across their chests with important gold medals pinned to them. They reminded me of when I was a Girl Scout and earned badges for different accomplishments. And oh, something else I hadn't really looked at earlier - clothing. Since this was such a special occasion, most of the women wore great long gowns, and I do mean great. I peered through the row of plants in front of me. Under mink stoles and coats were pink silk, black velvet and white chiffon covered with lots of glitter, rhinestones and jewels. All of Nancy Reagan's nicest dreams.

Wait a minute, I am going to be next! Oh, boy, don't get nervous. Slow down your breathing, but remember to inhale. Alright, he is on his last page. It's my turn! I grabbed hold of my poem and got ready to stand up. I was given a short introduction and then I was off. The fears had melted away and I was left, poem in hand.

It all went by so quickly, for soon enough I was sitting alongside my mother in the audience. I couldn't believe it, I didn't make a mistake (at least that's what my mom said). I then sat back and enjoyed the Army band's program - a tribute to General MacArthur.

The next day I went where few but DAR members have gone: See ON, page 7 years of torture in POW camps. Our seamen patrolled rivers whose jungled banks exploded with hostile artillery. Our marines questioned whether the farmer who fed them rice today might not lob a grenade into their bivouac tonight.

Theirs was a double burden, for they also grappled with the humiliation of having their countrymen publicly denounce America's presence in Southeast Asia. As Admiral James Bond Stockdale, a POW in North Vietnam for eight years, observed, "The pain and the loneliness were shallow complaints compared to finding yourself stripped of all entitlements to reputation, love, or honor at home."

Let us not consider the pros and cons of our presence in Vietnam, for that discussion belongs in the political arena. Let us, rather, understand that by turning our backs on our freedom fighters, on our military members, we denied our commitment to freedom. We rejected our soul.

Our military involvement in the crisis in Lebanon showed that America has begun to recover from the wounds of that rejection. The combat conditions in and around Beirut were similar to those of Vietnam: long months at sea, long hours in the air, long minutes ashore, everyone alert, See MEMORIAL, page 16

Pediatrics approved for Leigh Memorial

NORFOLK, VA—Leigh Memorial Hospital will open a 10-bed pediatrics unit later this year, Richard A. Hanson, hospital administrator has announced.

Children's Hospital of the King's Daughters will manage the unit under contract with Leigh Memorial. The unit will be staffed by trained Leigh Memorial personnel.

"We made the decision to affiliate with Children's Hospital because they are the specialists in the field. They will be providing us their expertise in running the unit," said Hanson.

State Health Commissioner James B. Kenney gave approval to Leigh Memorial's certificate of public need early this week.

In its certificate, Leigh Memorial cited four major reasons for requesting the pediatrics unit.

Locating pediatrics at Leigh Memorial will be a convenience for residents who live in growing areas of Virginia Beach and Chesapeake, which are projected to have growth rates of 14.6 percent and 12.8 percent, respectively, in the next five years.

Second, the unit will be convenient to the more than 20 pediatricians on the medical staff who have offices within 10 minutes of Leigh Memorial.

A third factor is that Children's Hospital's bed utilization is high. A joint venture with CHKD and Leigh Memorial would enable Children's Hospital to continue its development as the regional tertiary children's hospital.

And finally, Leigh Memorial would like to provide pediatric care to round out its services to the community and as a participating hospital in three health maintenance organizations. These HMOs have supported the unit as an alternative to provide high quality, economically priced, and convenient care to patients and physicians.

In the meantime, staff members from Leigh Memorial will receive specialized training in pediatrics from CHKD.

Driver Ed.

Behind-the-wheel training is offered

VIRGINIA BEACH—Virginia Beach Public Schools again will offer four behind-the-wheel driver education classes this summer, plus one classroom driver education course.

separate classes will be offered during each session: 8-10 a.m.; 10 a.m. - noon; and 12:30 - 2:30 p.m.

The classroom driver education course will be offered June 10 through June 21 at Princess Anne and Kempsville high schools only for students who have failed the classroom portion of driver education or have recently moved into Virginia Beach and have not taken the course as 10th graders. The class will be held from 8 a.m. to noon each day. The class will be held from 8 a.m. to noon each day. Students must have completed the classroom phase of driver education or have recently moved into Virginia Beach and have not taken the course as 10th graders.

Admission to the behind-the-wheel summer program will be based on grade level and age. Present seniors and juniors will be selected first, followed by sophomores, according to their ages.

It's a beautiful day

By Jay Means

McDonald Garden Center

The botanical name for daylily is Hemerocallis. It's of Greek origin: hemera (day) and kalos (beautiful). As the name indicates, each individual bloom only lasts for one day. But the short life of each bloom is well compensated by the large number of blooms that continue to come on throughout their blooming season. Many of our newer hybrid varieties are much more free flowering with flowers continuing to come on over a much longer period of time.

Daylilies are among the easiest of all flowering perennials. They're versatile, dependable, and resistant to many common pest problems. They're available in a wide range of colors and sizes. Daylilies will do well in most any type of soil and will grow in sun or shade. Ideally they like a moderately moist soil making them excellent for planting near water or near areas of poor drainage.

In the landscape daylilies are most effective when used in mass plantings where they can provide a lot of color during their summer blooming season. They also work well under shade trees, in shrub beds, at the edge of your lawn or wherever you'd like a splash of color. They're often used around outdoor living areas such as pools or patios.

Many of our newer hybrid varieties are dwarf (growing 18-20") making them excellent for smaller space gardens. Some of these include: Tiny pumpkin - orange blooms, Poco Vino - deep wine-color blooms, Aztec Gold, and Ming Toy - a red and yellow bicolor.

As with most perennials spent blooms should be picked to encourage more flowers. The blooms are colorful in suit bouquets, but short-lived. Few plants can rival the daylily in its dependability and longevity. It's tasteful beauty and form adds an elegance to any planting making the daylily a real princess of the garden.

A REAL FAMILY BUSINESS...

By Brenda P. Loukes

Staff Writer

A step ahead, the Mega Mazda Automobile Dealership has jumped into the future, looking towards the Big Picture. At the same time, the dealership has savored an important part of tradition and group integrity—the family unit.

In the beginning, the Heischober family didn't predict that their first dealership in 1967, Hilltop Volkswagen, would become a family business. With Harold Heischober was owner and president, today Mayor of Virginia Beach, the form of a true family business began to take shape when his son Steve, and two uncles entered the operation. Eight years later, Heischober's daughter, Jean Ann joined the clan and as the family business continued to grow, so did the franchise—in 1976, Mazda Motors of America awarded the Virginia Beach franchise to Hilltop, resulting in a dual dealership.

Two years later, Larry Heischober's other son, came aboard to make a full family ship; almost parallel to the merging of yet another franchise, Mace Motors of Norfolk, a Toyota dealership. What was once one became three dealerships, ultimately known as Hilltop Motors, Inc.

Always looking at the big picture, Harold Heischober sold the Volkswagen and Toyota franchises in 1983 and moved the Mazda franchise to Virginia Beach Boulevard in the Pembroke section of the Beach. Prior to the new location, Chrysler Corporation granted the Chrysler franchise to Heischober resulting in what is now Pembroke Mazda-Chrysler-Plymouth.

After a year at the new location, the decision was made to make the Mazda franchise a separate entity in an effort to provide a greater sales potential of the Mazda product.

Stemming Southwest from the full blossomed Pembroke area, Heischober and family identified a 3.5-acre site on Holland Road at Independence Boulevard, soon to be selected as the new home of Tidewater's only exclusive Mazda dealership—Mega Mazda.

"When looking for a permanent site to build on, we picked this one because we felt this (Holland Road) is the way Virginia Beach is going to grow," explained Larry Heischober. "The Pembroke area will be the downtown of Virginia Beach."

Heischober firmly believes the Pembroke area is the geographic and population center of the Beach and that future growth will take a southerly direction.

"If you take a drive down Holland Road and see all the building going on, you'll see what I mean," he said. "I think that this turned out to be the right move as far as location and being in a high traffic area. This is the only way the Beach can grow."

Today the ultra-modern facility features an elevated showroom, a state of the art equipped service department, a fully stocked parts department, and a separate used car building. The design, a reflection of Heischober taste, high-tech but conservative, pace-setting but unobtrusive, is just like the Mazda autoline.

However, it is rumored that the 1985 RX-7 could instigate a radical change from the car's past years of existence...the steady design pattern being a continuing stabilizing factor to ownership retention level.

Family, business, auto involvement—Will the future Heischober's keep their wheels turning? Although Larry Heischober has a young daughter, he makes no assumption on her eventual involvement.

"It is not something I would push or really advocate that much," he explained. "I think the reason being is my father didn't ever push or persuade us into working in the business."

But a tight focus on Mega Mazda, shows they have a tight family operation with Harold, Larry, Steve, Jean Ann, an uncle and the remaining majority also longtime affiliates of the family, like General Manager Buddy Linch.

"He has been with us from day one," said Larry Heischober. "He is like an uncle to me."

Along with the family holding together, there is a very possible growth trend of other auto dealers relocating to the Holland Road district. A new "Car Row"? The Heischober family believes they are a jump ahead.

Whether or not the assumption is correct, Mega Mazda stands as a catalyst on Holland Road and like the RX-7 itself, fast moving and technologically awakening, the Heischobers are representative of a fine-tuned Virginia Beach lifestyle—a real family business.

EVOLUTION

Sister, Jean Ann and the supportive Mega Mazda Team are a tight knit group.

Larry checks out the Mazda RX-7.

Prior to joining JISA, Ireland was managing editor of The Shopper, an advertising publication in Chesapeake, and a representative of the Press Pass advertising agency. She has worked in the field of marketing since 1981.

Pearce elected

MCLEAN, VA—First American Bank of Virginia chairman and President Milton L. Drewer, Jr., recently announced that Wenifer O. "Wink" Pearce was named president of the bank's Hampton Roads region.

Pearce will administer the region's operations and 27 offices in Norfolk, Hampton, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach and Newport News.

Pearce was executive director of the Virginia Bankers Association from 1971 until 1983. He has served as president of Banking Consultants of America since that time. Before his years of service with the VBA, Pearce was an assistant vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, and was in fact, the youngest person ever named an officer of Virginia's Federal Reserve Bank.

Pearce is a native Virginian, was graduated from Randolph Macon College and attended the South Carolina Banker School, the School of Banking of the South and completed Dun & Bradstreet's Credit and Financial Analysis program.

"I've worked with Wink many times during the past 15 years," Drewer said. "He is a good banker. He's an extraordinarily strong leader and I think he'll bring a great deal to our regional organization."

Pearce has served as director and president of the Virginia Council on Economic Education, is a member of the Associates Program at the McIntire School of Commerce of the University of Virginia and was appointed by two governors to the board of directors of the State Education Assistance Authority of Virginia.

Construction underway

Resort and Conference center

VIRGINIA BEACH—Construction has begun on the Virginia Beach Resort and Conference Center. According to a company spokesman, it will be one of the largest hotel resort and business complexes between Delaware and Hilton Head, South Carolina.

The $25 million condominium-hotel, a project of Virginia Beach Resort and Conference Center Partnership, will be the area's largest resort hotel and conference center. The 8-story, 295-unit complex will accommodate conference groups of 10 to 500.

The 301,000 square foot conference center is being built on the largest piece of available waterfront land in Virginia Beach. Located off Shore Drive near Great Neck Road, the Center encompasses 3.7 acres. Because the project is on the Chesapeake Bay, the developers believe that the resort image will be enhanced. With few hotels nearby, open beaches, and the 2700 acre Seashore State Park adjacent to the complex, the impression is of an uncongested serene atmosphere.

The individual units in the condominium-hotel will be owned by single investors or companies. The owners choose the hotel management. Over one half of the hotel condominium units were sold prior to construction in a period of three months. Base prices for condominium units have increased from $79,900 to $88,900.

Features of the complex include two restaurants, a major nightclub, an indoor/outdoor swimming pool featuring a teak bar with submerged seating and outdoor deck area, complete spa and health club with glass-enclosed jacuzzi, massage room, sauna and sunbath rooms, game room, gallery of fine boutiques and newsstand.

Conference facilities at Virginia Beach Resort and Conference Center include 12,000 feet of flexible banquet and meeting space. The Chesapeake Ballroom, the largest of the rooms, can be separated into three individual meeting rooms and features a sunset view of the Chesapeake Bay. For smaller conferences, the Center offers two executive board rooms. A total of 12 different rooms are available for conferences and all can change in size to accommodate the individual group. All conference facilities are equipped with state-of-the-art sound systems, microphones, telephones, and cable television outlets.

All units in the hotel are deluxe suites, overlook the Chesapeake Bay, offer two double beds or a king size bed, full bath, dressing room, fully equipped kitchenette, living room with wet bar, sleep sofa and dining area. All units are furnished.

In addition to Dr. Shiflet, partners in the development team include David B. Oglesby, President of Oglesby/Arnhold Realty, Sterling F. Webster, III, President of Webster Building Corporation, and builder-developer Rocco J. Lassiter.

The Center was designed by Gerald A. Cox, A.I.A. of Gerald A. Cox, P.C. and Morrisette, Cedarquist, Bondurant & Associates. Estimates are that the project will be completed in the Spring of 1986. Several conventions have already expressed interest in the facility.

Inflation and taxation the two subtle factors

You may recognize that you can't work hard enough or long enough to acquire adequate wealth to do all the things in life you would like to do. Between the two very subtle factors, inflation and taxation, you may spend your life working and saving but never accumulate much. Your purchasing power may remain static, or it might even decrease!

The answer to this problem is to get your money (assets) to work harder for you. Look for your assets to do these things for you:

1. Grow in value.
 2. Produce income, preferably non-taxable.
 3. Be readily convertible to cash if the need arises.
- The perfect investment for all of us might be one that offers safety of principal, totally tax-free (or nearly so), earned income with capital consistently growing in excess of the inflation rate, and a ready market where it could be converted to cash within several days. All investments should be weighed against the criteria of what you believe to be the perfect investment. Money should be at work creating additional dollars while you sleep. You and I can work only ten to fifteen hours a day, but money can and should work twenty-four hours each and every day. Money operates in a geometric progression that continually doubles and triples -

Financial Planning and Investments
By

creating more money for additional investments. That is why you should understand interest rates and net return on your money. In other words, be sure you are getting the most effective use of your assets.

Each dollar must be working effectively and efficiently. Efficiency of doing things right, effectiveness is doing the right things. It is efficient, for example, to have funds withheld from payroll and deposited in a 5½% passbook savings account. This is easy and uncomplicated. But accumulating this same money, and transferring minimum increments into a money market fund would be more effective.

Remember money working for you is the key to your economic well-being. One of your objectives should be to create enough assets which produce income so that you work because you must do so. Money working for you will create this kind of freedom for you. I can't say it often enough; plan for what you want in the way of income without work. Freedom comes from money working for you, not vice versa.

Who Must Be Obeyed. In this collection of stories, in between visits to Pommeroy's wine bar and its bottles of Chateau Thames Embankment, Rumpole duels verbally with judges, manipulates juries, solves an art mystery, aids Fiona Allways in her bid to be admitted as a barrister, journeys to the African country of Neranga, solves a murder, and handily tricks a solicitor into paying a sizeable back debt.

The descriptions and dialogue are filled with a dry wit and wealth of detail which lends itself to being read and which would lose immeasurably in the transition to the screen, no matter how well done. Footnotes allude to other adventures and whet the appetite for more. Rumpole was a thoroughly enjoyable surprise and an experience I hope to repeat often.

Other titles include Rumpole, Rumpole of the Bailey, The Trials of Rumpole, Rumpole's return and Rumpole for the defense.—Powell.

the DAR museum. Each of the states is responsible for furnishing a room in furniture, clothing, dishes and art pieces of a particular time period. It was very impressive, better than the White House collection in my opinion. Some rooms included wonderful paintings of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and others. Rooms had antique china, handmade musical instruments, and ingenious kitchen utensils. But the most amazing place was the doll attic which was filled with a variety of dolls, iron piggybanks, doll clothes, doll buggies, tiny tea sets and doll houses.

I also visited the genealogy library where you can research your family's past. This was a wonder in itself for it was gigantic, filled with some of the oldest books in the United States. During the day I also found out about some of the programs the DAR sponsors. One project is the support of two schools in Appalachia for underprivileged children.

I certainly found out that there is more to the DAR than meets the eye. It was a special experience for me discovering it all.

Including "Best Club"

Beach Rotary Club takes four awards

The Virginia Beach Rotary Club won four awards at the District 760 Rotary International Conference held recently in Arlington, Virginia. Among the four awards was selection as "Best Club" in the 76 club district. The Virginia Beach Rotary Club also won first place in "External Public Relations" and was runner up to Falls Church for the "Governor's Challenge Cup." The cup is awarded to the Rotary Club which best supports The Rotary Foundation.

President John Fahey of the Virginia Beach Rotary Club received an additional honor at the Conference as one of the top six club presidents in the district for Rotary year, 1984-85.

Thus far this year the Virginia Beach Rotary club has contributed almost $10,000 to The Rotary Foundation, more total dollars than any other club in District 760. As a result of this effort, Fahey has been invited to present talks on a "Blueprint for Success" to the Portsmouth, Oyster Point, and Charlottesville Rotary Clubs. Fahey's first talk is scheduled in Charlottesville on June 11.

Fahey thanked the Virginia Beach members for their dedication and diligence at the May 17 meeting at the Pavilion. "The Best Club Award has honored our community as well as our club." At the final banquet Rotary International Director Fernando O. Friedmann of Santiago, Chile singled out the Club's accomplishment in external public relations as a shining example for all Rotary Clubs throughout the world.

At the conclusion of the Rotary year on June 30, 1985 Virginia Beach Director of Economic Development James A. DeBellis will replace John Fahey as president of the club. Fahey is a faculty member at Old Dominion University and serves on the Virginia Beach City Public School Board.

Book sale seeks vols

The Virginia Beach Public Library is recruiting volunteers, ages 11 to 16, to help prepare and organize the summer Friends of the Library used book sale, to be held on Sunday, August 11, at the Pavilion. Between now and then, volunteers may help sort, pack and transport the books at their local libraries, and on the day of the sale, unpack and set the books up, help buyers get books to their cars and clean up. In previous summer sales, the help of young volunteers has been invaluable, and the library needs you once more. To volunteer, contact a local Virginia Beach Public Library to call Mary K. Chelton at 427-4321.

No points. No fees. Low rate.
That's a home equity loan to make any owner smile.

Like a lot of homeowners, you've probably been hearing how easy it is to go to your bank for the cash you need for new cars, vacations, home improvement or whatever, simply by borrowing against the equity in your home.

But, like a lot of homeowners, you may also have found out that what looks easy at some banks can also be costly.

13.5 APR. FIXED 10 YEARS.
12.99 APR. FIXED 5 YEARS.

Not at First American. We don't believe in charging "points"—those up-front charges some banks collect for a low rate.

Starting today, and for a limited

PLUS THE SAVINGS OF SIMPLE INTEREST.

In fact, we don't even build in front-loaded interest charges and prepayment penalties, like a lot of banks.

We charge straight simple interest. Which means you can reduce your loan interest charges by prepaying (before your monthly due date) your loan. For example, if your payment is due the 15th of the month and you pay by the 10th, you save 5 days' interest charges on the amount you'd normally pay. This can mean significant savings to you.

Plus there's no penalty for paying your loan off in advance.

Fair's fair. That's the way we offer Home Equity loans at First American.

No points. No fees. No fooling around. And plain old simple interest.

There's not a more favorable way to get your cash equity credit out of your home, unless you've got money hidden under the loose floorboard in the parlor.

Come in and let us show you how easy, and reasonable, banking can be.

Club for professional women encompasses Beach/Chesapeake

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Zonta Club of Virginia Beach-Chesapeake was recently chartered by Zonta International, a worldwide classified service organization of executive women in business and the professions, at Pavilion Tower Hotel in Virginia Beach with 23 charter members and a guest list of mayors, Virginia senators, delegates of the General Assembly and Zonta International representatives from as far away as New York.

Zonta District III Governor, Attorney Jane Garvey, assisted by Dorothy Voss, lt. governor, and Edith Clark Nails, treasurer, officiated. Charter members were inducted by a candlelight ceremony and officers installed were:

Gayle Zydron - president; Betty J. Callaway - first vice-president; Priscilla Beede - second vice-president; Ramona B. Stenzhorn - secretary and Marlene J. Hager - Treasurer.

Serving as directors will be: Joan Downs, Frances S. Elrod, Julie L. Smith and Ruth H. Smith.

Each Zontian holds a "classification" representing her business or profession. Membership is by invitation only. Ruth Smith, city clerk of Virginia Beach, co-organized the club through the sponsorship of the Zonta Club of Fairfax County with Ethel W. Register, clerk to the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors. Betty J. Callaway, city clerk of Chesapeake, assisted in the organization - thus, the territorial area encompasses both Virginia Beach and Chesapeake, representing another regional success. Of 30 business and professional women invited to become charter members, 26 have accepted and 23 were named to the Charter.

There are over 900 Zonta Clubs in approximately 50 countries with more than 33,000 members. Zonta International was founded in 1919 in Buffalo, New York. The current International President is Annikki Makinen from Finland. She was installed at the 1984 International Conference in Sydney, Australia. A message from Makinen was read to the membership and guests prior to presentation of the charter.

Zonta holds consultative status with the United Nations and has observers in New York, Geneva, Paris and Vienna.

The Zonta Club of Virginia Beach-Chesapeake selected for its service project the Battered Women's Shelter, sponsored by the Norfolk YWCA and supported in part by the United Way Family Center in Virginia Beach. The Club has committed to interior renovations and "emergency" packets for women's and children's personal needs. This service project will aid all Tidewater and is aimed to represent regionalism through Zonta.

Several projects were proposed - each representing not only Virginia Beach and Chesapeake, but all communities surrounding these two cities. The officers of the club also represent regional efforts in that by residence Virginia Beach, Chesapeake and Norfolk are "home" to these professionals whose terms will be February 1985 through April 1986. The Board of Directors meets regularly at 7 a.m. on the second Monday of each month and alternates a luncheon and dinner meeting on the third Wednesday of each month.

Burglary info sought

Crime Solvers

Virginia Beach Crime Solvers is offering a cash reward of up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrest of those responsible for the March Burglary at Beach Marine.

Between 6 p.m. March 14 and 7:30 a.m. the next day, someone cut the chain link fence at the rear of Beach Marine at 1424 North Great Neck Road and entered the compound. Once inside, the burglars used a 1975 Chevy Blazer owned by Beach Marine to steal the following items: Three Yamaha outboard motors, three Evinrude outboard motors, and four Motor Guide trolling motors. Also taken were Puritan and Jobe water skis, two Ray Jefferson VHF radios, and a Magnavox VCR recorder. The property stolen was valued at $13,531 but the $4,000 Blazer was located on Cape Henry Drive.

Detectives believe that another burglary to Benny's Boat at 3762 Shore Drive may have been committed by the same people.

Crime Solvers asks that anyone with information about these or any other burglaries call 427-0000. Callers also can receive as much as $1,000 if they provide information about the location of wanted people, drugs, stolen property or any crime committed in Virginia Beach.

Callers never have to give their name when providing information to Crime Solvers.

Memorial Day tribute watchful, guarding against surprise attacks that could materialize from anywhere, anytime. We suffered fatigue and boredom. We swallowed our fear and loneliness. We cried out our sorrow. And we thanked America for your support. Even if politically you disapproved of the U.S. involvement in the Middle East, you remembered the individuals who were involved. The packet of letters I received from a group of elementary school children, asking me to write to them and to visit them when I had returned, was a small example of your spirit. You told us that we were not alone, that you appreciated our sacrifices.

Long ago the Greek historian

Thucydides understood the soldier's sacrifice and wrote a eulogy for those men who had died defending freedom. His words explain why we, who love freedom as Athens did, have a Memorial Day: "So they gave their bodies to the commonwealth and received, each for this own memory, praise that will never die, and with it the grandest of all sepulchers, not that in which their mortal bones are laid, but a home in the minds of men, where their glory remains fresh to stir to speech or action as the occasion comes by. For the whole earth is the sepulcher of famous men; and their story is not graven only on stone over their native earth, but lives on far away, without visible symbol, woven into the stuff of other men's lives. For you now it remains to rival what they have done and, knowing the secret of happiness to be freedom and the secret of freedom a brave heart, not idly to stand aside from the enemy's onset."

I hope that America never again forsakes our commitment to Freedom. And I hope that America always honors the uniformed men and women who keep us free, those nameless thousands who are nonetheless heroes.

First commercial TV station ok'd for Beach

By Brenda P. Loukes
Staff Writer

VIRGINIA BEACH—"We are Channel 43, the first and only licensed commercial television station in Virginia Beach. We are very proud of that designation," announced G. Dewey Simmons, Jr., president of the new independent station, Summit Communications, Inc.

The lengthy process of acquiring a construction permit to build Channel 43 began two years ago in February, when the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) allocated the ability to obtain a permit for the Virginia Beach geographic area.

Three competing parties were in the final run for the permit—Summit Communications, Inc., Tidewater Broadcasting Company, Inc., and Tidewater Christian Communications Corporation. During the following two years the FCC would determine which party was the best applicant.

On May 14, 1985, Summit Communications was awarded the construction permit, and the other parties were dismissed in a See TV, page 10

VIRGINIA BEACH—Have you been looking for a place for your Mustang, Morgan or Colt to stretch its legs? Then come to Creeds (in Virginia Beach) on Saturday, June 1 and Sunday, June 2 for "Creeds-across"—a high-speed autocross. The two-day event will be co-conducted by the Creeds Off-Road and Drag Park and the Tidewater Sports Car Club (TSSC).

An autocross is a competitive timed event in which drivers maneuver, one car at a time, through a series of pylons. The pylons are arranged to simulate a road racing course. Autocrosses are generally held in shopping center parking lots.

An autocross's best time of several attempts, or runs, on the course is compared with other competitors in one of 17 classes to determine final standing.

Classes are grouped under categories including "stock," "prepared," "modified," "formula," "GT stock," "novice," and "ladies."

The autocross at Creeds will use several of the many airstrip runways to form a very fast one and one-half mile-long road course. Most cars will use fourth and fifth gears on the long straight sections. The challenging layout will also feature sweeping left-and right-hand turns, offset gates (a gate is a pair of pylons through which a driver must pass) and a chicane.

Because the autocross is much faster than parking lot events, extra safety measures will be required, including:

- All cars must pass a rigorous safety inspection.
- Novices (beginners and those with less than six autocrosses since 1983) must attend practice on Saturday to compete on Sunday.

- Autocrossers who have not driven in a high-speed event must practice on Saturday to compete on Sunday.

- No alcoholic beverages allowed.

- No reckless driving, burnouts, or tire warming allowed in the pits, staging or return roads.

- All pets must remain on leash at all times.

- No glass bottles allowed.

- No one under the age of 14 allowed in staging.

Registration for practice on Saturday will open at 9 a.m. Practice will begin as soon as cars pass the safety inspection, and will continue until 4:30 p.m. Autocrossers are welcome to participate in the regularly-scheduled Creeds drag races which begin at 5:30 p.m.

Sunday's autocross will begin at 9 a.m. with registration and safety inspection. Competition starts at 10 a.m. Trophies will be available at the end of competition on Sunday.

Entry fees for both days are as follows: $20 per driver (Saturday and Sunday), or: $15 per driver (if they help work each day by acting as course marshal or timing assistant).

$6 general admission (for non-drivers/course workers) fee includes Saturday night drag race spectating.

Entry fees for only one day are as follows: $12 per driver; $9 per driver (if they help work the course); $5 general admission.

Extra features include:

- Camping at the track on Saturday night for $3 per person.

- Free admission to people under the age of 12.

- Track-side water and electricity available.

- Saturday night party for autocrossers.

Bob Jones - a minority of one

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

VIRGINIA BEACH—On a scale of one to ten, Virginia Beach City Councilman Robert G. Jones scores a nine-and-a-half in frustration.

Often finding himself in the minority, sometimes a minority of one, Jones says, "I do sense I'm not in the flow of City Council."

The understatement is typical of Jones, who, during his three years on Council has initiated no personal attacks on other Council members; that's not his style. He has overlooked remarks directed against him, specifically or by innuendo, choosing instead to plunge ahead with his own thoughts and issues.

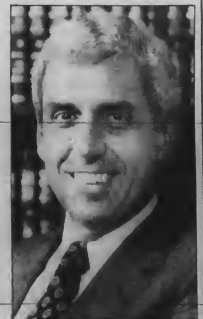

Until last Monday.

Council was considering developer R. G. Moore's proposal concerning open space for the Sajo Farm planned unit development (PDU-2). Council was taking a second look at Moore's offer to the manor house on the property plus four surrounding acres to fill the open space requirements of the PDU-3. The proposal was criticized on two points—the property was separated from the area which was to be developed and the city would have to condemn property for access. That is, the city would be using its power of eminent domain to help a developer fill his commitment.

When the matter came up last week with another proposal by Moore, Robert Jones suggested that the item be referred to the Planning Commission for review. His feeling was that dealing with the rezoning originally in haste is what got Council in its present predicament.

Councilman John A. Baum told Jones that if he had acted properly in 1983 Council would not be going through Monday's exercise.

The problem was that Jones had been mostly silent during the Oct. 17, 1983 deliberations when See JONES, page 5

All was in fun, however, as City Clerk presided over the Second Annual Virginia Beach Cardiac Arrest for the Tidewater Council of the American Heart Association. Local celebrities were rounded up and "jailed" at Poppies last Friday requiring their friends to post "bail." Funds were donated to the American Heart Association. Editorials

Brickell's benefits

The School Board of the City of Virginia Beach has agreed to rearrange certain benefits currently available to School Superintendent E. E. Brickell, by reassigning his car allowance under the heading of annual pay, and by trimming out of town travel reimbursements back from 20.5 cents a mile to repayment for the cost of gasoline.

Brickell's salary is the highest of any school superintendent in the state of Virginia at $80,922 annually, and the reassessment of his car allowance will shoot that salary to $92,598.

There's been a great deal of speculation in the public press of late as to whether the School Board controls Brickell or Brickell controls the Board. An enormously popular administrator, Brickell balances a national reputation among educators with a personal charisma that has often made him seem the Lee Iacocca of area public service.

Once that parallel is drawn it is an easy step to another conclusion, in that any administrator in the private sector working with the kinds of numbers Brickell must manage in terms of personnel and budget would surely be in the same pay bracket.

However, dangers lie in the precedent set by Brickell over the past two years, whereby he has submitted his own salary increases as part of his division's budgetary package. Checks and balances make up our entire governmental system and even the most brilliant of administrators must comply.—S.M.

Banning trucks

The Virginia Beach City Council has approved an ordinance regarding trucks on Atlantic Avenue. Vehicles registered with the Division of Motor Vehicles as a truck are prohibited on Atlantic Avenue from 40th Street to 2nd Street, between the hours of 7 p.m. to 3 a.m. The ordinance exempts those trucks engaged in conducting business or in the delivery or provision of goods or services in this area. Trucks which have a reasonable purpose for being in the restricted area will not be ticketed.

This ordinance was approved to enhance the safety of pedestrians, bicyclists, etc., in the resort area. Provisions of the ordinance are in effect from May 15-September 30, each year.

Masterprice Theatre

Imagine the perennially urbane Alistair Cooke pausing in his introduction to "Masterprice Theatre" for a 30-second tribute to the superior holding powers of Poli-Grip.

Or "Nova" interrupting an exploration of the wonders of the insect world to allow a pitch for Raid.

Or the cast of "Tosca" warbling the Michelob Light song from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera.

Thankfully, public television viewers thus far have been spared such undignified hype. But commercial messages, once unthinkable on the public Broadcasting Service, are making discreet advances these days, thanks to shrinking taxpayer support of public broadcasting and a 1984 ruling by the Federal Communications Commission.

The FCC permitted what is called "enhanced underwriting"—something more than the mere mention of a corporate sponsor's name, but something less than a full-blown commercial. As a result, photos of specific products, familiar slogans and even brief musical jingles are turning up on PBS.

Does all of this make you a bit uneasy? It does us. Public broadcasting, after all, was created as a distinct, advertising-free alternative to commercial television. If PBS starts to look like a somewhat more tasteful clone of CBS, Congress might well ask why any tax dollars should support the former.

That, it seems, is one of the risks posed by enhanced underwriting, which helped bring in $57.1 million in corporate contributions to public television stations last year (an increase of $19 million over 1983). Another danger, now that the door is open partway, is that advertisers will want still more freedom to sell their images and wares. PBS is already said to be considering more liberal rules.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

I lost both legs and an arm in Vietnam, but many sacrificed far more than I in America's wars and other armed conflicts. Since our country's founding, a million and a quarter servicemen and women gave up life itself.

Memorial Day is their day—a day on which we're asked to remember the immense sacrifices that paid the price for our way of life. Such memories come naturally to those of us who served in times of war and armed conflict.

Most of us saw others die in combat. We can't ever forget them.

But many Americans do forget.

The federal observance of Memorial Day falls on May 27 this year. Many municipalities and veterans' organizations, however, prefer to observe Memorial Day on the traditional May 30 date.

Who snuffed the sheriff?

Mystery and history lovers take heart! Brother Cadfael, that 12th century Benedictine sleuth is back in another intriguing tale, Dead Man's Ransom. This medieval mystery by Ellis Peters, is a cleverly plotted story of adventure, romance and murder supported by a meticulously researched portrayal of life in the middle ages.

One of the reasons for the growing popularity of this series is the character of Brother Cadfael, who is definitely not the typical cloistered monk, innocent and protected. He is, instead a vigorous, former soldier-of-fortune who, after many years of traveling and fighting, has decided to spend the remainder of his life as a brother in the Shrewsbury Abbey. His curiosity and interest in life frequently involves him in intrigue and murder, both within and without the Abbey's walls, much to the dismay of some of his superiors.

In Dead Man's Ransom, Brother Cadfael, the Abbey's herbalist is called upon to tend to the injured Sheriff of Shropshire who has been wounded during the fierce war raging between the Empress Maud and King Stephen. The Sheriff has been brought to the Abbey to recuperate, and although he is badly hurt, he is expected to recover. When he suddenly dies, Cadfael suspects murder and after painstaking investigation, proves that the Sheriff was smothered as he slept. Suspicion falls on several people, among them a stockman whose brother the Sheriff had executed; a senile monk who blamed the Sheriff for the loss of a part of his family's land; and a young prisoner-of-war who had fallen in love with the Sheriff's daughter and knew a marriage between them would never be permitted as long as the See SHERIFF, page 5

Tidewater Community College welcomed participants to a Literacy Workshop last week at the Virginia Beach Campus of Tidewater Community College. The participants, representing business, industry, and five institutions of higher education focused on ways in which reading and writing skills benefit all students both during their academic and vocational studies and throughout their careers.

Keynote speaker for the workshop was Dr. Danny Wolfe, professor, author, and director of the Tidewater Virginia Writing Project. "We don't discover the truth," stressed Dr. Wolfe, "we invent it. The only way we can own the truth is to create it ourselves. We cannot trust the sensory world. We have to create the facts from our own experience. Our job as teachers is to set up situation where our students invent meaning."

"Setting up situations" means setting up situations in which students can use writing skills. Writing has been called the most powerful method of learning.

At Tidewater Community College, students are given the facilities and encouragement to develop reading and writing skills. Through various avenues, such as courses in basic communication, or access to a Writing Center, students are encouraged to develop skills in expressing themselves clearly and with purpose. These skills help students not only in the

Wino's banquet

"Don't throw that away!" I warned Julie as she made ready to toss a couple of chicken breasts in the garbage can. "You know how I hate to see food thrown away."

"Take a whiff of it," she replied.

The offending chicken went away, along with some wilted lettuce, a scrawny orange and some green apples which had turned slightly brown.

I love to eat, and the vision of unused food going to waste gives me a pain, but nothing like the pain that caused my cooks to cry the day we threw away $2,000 worth of filet mignon, scallops, hamburger and yes, chicken breasts, into the dumpster.

I was general manager of a brand spanking new eatery located on 21st Street in Norfolk. We were no chain, so the job of myself and my assistant managers was to set up a system, hire cooks, waiters, waitresses, bartenders, busmen, dishwashers and so on, and train them while establishing the ongoing business routine. The owner was responsible for the design and construction of the restaurant.

Like all new places staffed by a new crew working with unfamiliar equipment, we had our exciting moments, like the Friday afternoon someone moved the ice machine, unplugging a waterpipe at the same time. I was on the telephone when suddenly there was a sound of rushing water. Cooks and dishwashers came flying out the front. I stepped to the end of the bar only to see a three inch wall of water advancing like a miniature tidal wave, heading for the sunken dining room, which I immediately thought we might rename "The Atlantis Room."

By Samuel
Martinette, Jr.

The chief cook used his head and ended the room by tossing a dam of dirty laundry in front of the watery disaster.

All of which goes to show that you have to be prepared for the unexpected in the restaurant business.

But I wasn't prepared the next day, when the cooks called me to the back. The Health Department inspector was in the kitchen making a regular visit when she and the cooks spotted an irregularity.

Something was wrong electrically. Everything that was supposed to be hot was slowly getting cold—while all of the food in the walk-in refrigerator was slowly getting warm. Many foods begin to spoil as their temperature rises, our chicken friends being an example, fish being another.

It was a hot August afternoon, so I suspected a brown-out, or reduction of power. No, said VECO. The trouble's not at our end.

We called an emergency electrician. In the meantime I had to decide whether to close down the restaurant. The health lady was astounded. This had never happened in her experience. The room was getting hotter, the food warmer and the staff near panic.

Of course, we weren't in business to poison anyone or send customers away sick, so I closed the place down voluntarily. We had been open for three meals. We would be closed for a week.

By this time the trouble was diagnosed. All of the machinery was wired to the wrong circuits and was slowly grinding itself down. The cooks were crying; even the health inspector was in tears. The entire perishable food inventory had to be tossed.

"Can't I take them home and eat them?" I pleaded.

"No," the cooks said. The food had gone too far.

So it all went into the dumpster, a wino's banquet to surpass all others.

Hospital auxiliary donates to new cancer center

VIRGINIA BEACH—The annual meeting of the Virginia Beach General Hospital Auxiliary was highlighted by a $69,000 contribution toward the hospital's new $3 million radiation therapy center currently under construction on the hospital site at 1060 First Colonial Road. The donation marked a total of $200,000 given to the project by the group over the past three years.

The new facility will house a 6 megavolt linear accelerator and other state-of-the-art technology to offer treatments to cancer patients who currently must travel to other Tidewater cities for their therapy. This will complete the full service approach VBGH offers in the treatment of cancer. The three methods that can be provided are surgery, chemotherapy and radiation therapy.

W. Earl Willis, hospital president, accepted the donation and remarked, "Our Auxiliary has contributed well over a half-million dollars to the hospital since 1963. Each separate donation moved us toward providing the finest health care services to the community. Yet no single donation is more vital than one which serves to treat cancer—a condition that claims the lives of one out of every five Americans."

Sonja Purkey, Auxiliary president, who heads the group of over a thousand active members, noted the organization raised funds through a number of special projects that included an auction-buffet held in January. The group also operates the hospital gift shop and sponsors a variety of patient services.

In addition to the $69,000, she reported that over $83,000 was contributed during the past year for medical equipment purchases, improved patient services, and scholarships. The organization was founded in 1962 to help meet non-medical needs of patients, foster goodwill in the community, and assist with fundraising efforts. The group has donated $542,463 to the hospital over the past 23 years.

J. Morgan Davis to head Princess Anne Commercial Bank

VIRGINIA BEACH—An intense, two-month search has culminated with the appointment of a former First & Merchants official, J. Morgan Davis, as president, chief executive officer and director of the soon-to-open Princess Anne Commercial Bank in Virginia Beach.

The announcement of Davis' appointment came from Princess Anne's chairman, Homer W. Cunningham. "Davis is the person we've been looking for," said Cunningham. "He's experienced in all aspects of the banking industry and his background in commercial lending is especially impressive."

Davis, who will immediately take over the reins, says the bank is expected to meet its projected July 1 opening date.

"I'm assuming this position with a great deal of confidence. My background, particularly in lending, has afforded me a great deal of experience with businesses of all sizes. I understand their needs and problems, and, as president of a commercial bank, will be able to respond to their individual situations effectively and efficiently," he explained.

Davis noted that as the president and chief executive officer of Princess Anne Commercial Bank he will be instrumental in developing business for the new financial entity. "I plan to be an out-and-about president, one easily accessible to the people," he remarked.

Davis pointed out that Princess Anne Commercial Bank will not only be designed to appeal to commercial accounts, but also to individuals of high net worth. "There is a big advantage in talking to an experienced decision-maker. We're not constrained by the policies of a central office in another city. All our decisions will be made right here in Virginia Beach," he declared.

According to Cunningham, Princess Anne Commercial

Bank's lending limit will approach $1 million. "Membership in the Independent Banks of Virginia network enables our bank to make larger loans and provide additional services," he says.

Cunningham said that when Princess Anne Commercial Bank opens this summer at 641 Lynnhaven Parkway it will be the first bank to open in Tidewater in seven years. He explained that $2 million in equity capital will be raised with an offering in the near future of $1.5 million in stock and by a $500,000 equity contribution from Independent Banks of Virginia.

Cunningham projects the Virginia Beach business and professional community will respond favorably to the new bank. "I've already received a great deal of positive feedback from businesses and individuals who feel a locally owned and managed commercial bank is just what this city needs."

Cunningham added that additional board members for Princess Anne Commercial Bank will soon be named. Current members, in addition to Davis, include William J. Davenport III, Russell A. Gills Jr., Henry U. Morgan Jr. and Daniel N. Ryan.

Planning for disability

Another area of catastrophe planning that professionals tend to overlook is the need for disability insurance. If income stopped because of disability, bills and expenses could be paid from only four basic sources: savings, loans, charity or insurance. If a professional is a sole practitioner and were prevented from working for a prolonged period of time, he or she could not afford to support themselves let alone a family for extended periods from savings. Borrowing the large sums of money often required to meet living expenses at a time when there is no income is practically out of the question, and very few people really want to rely on charity. Unless there are considerable savings, this leaves only one practical alternative to help assure financial security for the professional and his or her loved ones - long term disability insurance.

My point is illustrated below. For a person under age 60, the odds of being disabled for a period of three months or more are far greater than the chance of death. Here are the odds:

Age	Chances of Disability Vs. Death
40	2.6 to 1
50	1.8 to 1
59	1.6 to 1

Further, half of those who are disabled for six months will be disabled at the end of 5 years. The ratio is fairly constant, irrespective of age.

Still another sensitive area for professionals is business interruption. Sole practitioners are especially vulnerable. The purpose of business interruption insurance is to keep the employees and office (rent) in operation until the professional can turn to work.

Many of the above risks are covered in excellent policies offered through professional trade groups. These organizations understand the particular (and often unique) needs of their members, review their needs and benefits each year and because of a large membership, are continually able to gain more benefits at more reasonable rates than can be obtained from insurance companies. Most definitely, professionals should contact their professional associations and learn about the various offered.

Financial Planning and Investments
By
Madeline Fortunato

Professionals must protect themselves against the very large and unexpected risks they face. This precaution not only lessens daily worries, but also reduces the possibility that a professional's assets will be wiped out by a disaster. In part, such risk coverage includes casualty insurance, errors and omissions insurance, major medical coverage, business interruption insurance and possibly key-man or buy-sell insurance.

Catastrophe planning can also include the hedging of investments against world economic turmoil. For example, the use of precious metals or a foreign bank account are but two methods which can be considered. Catastrophe planning must surely include adequate liquidity in the event of a prolonged recession, decline in practice income, termination of employment, family emergencies, or extended physical disability. Any person who has any professional liability exposure should be sure to protect him or herself with a separate policy to protect against malpractice or negligence suits.

A typical individual's personal property and liability insurance needs are usually handled quite well by a homeowners policy and auto insurance contract, but a common error made by many professionals is that liability limits are set too low. Normally, they should be raised to more closely cover the professional's assets. In addition to raising these limits, professionals should also seriously consider purchasing an "umbrella" or "excess" liability policy. Most individuals who practice a profession are deemed to have deep pockets. That is to say they are perceived by the public as either making a good deal of money or having accumulated substantial assets. An umbrella or excess policy covers an individual in the event he or she is sued for more than normal liability or for unusual causes such as slander, or liability. Such a policy must be coordinated with the normal liability protection provided by household liability insurance.

A 27-foot Miami Palm begins its haul to the Hotel Plaza's lobby, where it will find its new home. Sun photo by Brenda P. Loukes

3,000 pound palm moves to the Plaza

By Brenda P. Loukes
Staff Writer

VIRGINIA BEACH—All dressed in coordinating kelly-green T-shirts with a company logo stamped on their backs and khaki pants, the girls and Tom Evans of Green Leaves Plants, 1932 Virginia Beach Blvd., sat anxiously on the afternoon of May 23, awaiting the big moment.

Meanwhile construction workers for the Virginia Beach Plaza-Hotel, 4453 Bonney Road, were racing with time in an effort to complete the structure's art-deco interior for the completely booked grand opening the following day.

At 2:30 p.m. arrived the operation began. A 27-foot Phoenix Reclinata Palm Tree was about to be planted in the hotel's lobby.

Evans purchased and loaded the 2,500-3,000 pound palm in Miami, Florida on Tuesday evening, May 21. The giant arrived in Virginia Beach on Wednesday and awaited its new home, lying on its side in the back of a moving van.

The 30-50 year old tree was then chained to a fork lift and carefully hauled out of the van by its roots. The Green Leaves girls, using all their muscles, carried the other end of the palm to the side of the hotel toward an opening, barely big enough for the monster to fit through.

After about an hour and a half of maneuvers, the beast finally made its entrance into the lobby. Now the crew had to place the palm in a verticle position. With help from the construction people, the tree finally stood, bound in burlap.

Getting the Phoenix Reclinata up and over a three foot planter and into its container took Evans and the girls a lot of sweat and hard work. Just as they thought the task was in the bag, the fork lift ran out of gas. A slight delay but quickly rendered. With a little more engine juice, the motor was soon running again.

Time came to lower the towering plant into the container, all eyes watching...too small! The crew had to trim down the mass of soil around the palm's roots to make a proper fit.

At last, the palm gently settled into its new home. The burlap was cut away and palms fronds reigned over the entire area of the Plaza-Hotel's lobby.

With smiles and sighs of relief, mixed with satisfaction, the crew stood back for a final glance at the Miami Palm. One step closer to Memorial Day weekend.

the property was rezoned to PDH-2. He had asked questions of an attorney for one of the individuals involved. Then-Councilman Harold Hilschaber had recommended deferral until a legal matter involving some of the property was resolved. Councilman H. Jack Jennings Jr., supported by Councilman J. Henry McCoy Jr. asked for a deferment for a definite period of time. Thirty days was agreed upon.

Jones knew that he had not been responsible for hastening setting the deferral date, but it wasn't until after the recess that he had a verbatim from the Oct. 17 meeting proving his point. After Jones read the verbatim Baum apologized.

Jones is not anti-growth or anti-developer although he said the public tends to line up Council members as pro- or anti-developer. A Virginia Beach with a small-town atmosphere is unrealistic, he said. "People are going to be here. The question is creating a future. That's something we can do something about."

As for Moore, probably the city's biggest developer, Jones said that he is "taking a bad rap." The problem is not with Moore, but with Council. Moore is in business to make a profit, but Council's lack of planning, Jones said, allows Moore to do what he does.

In the past, Jones said, he has voted in favor of Moore's projects, but more recently he has voted against them.

"I haven't been interested in raising taxes because I do not have any confidence in how the taxes will be spent." Jones did not support the Operating budget because he believes the budget conceals more than it reveals. He pointed out that he has asked for ten-year trends for the past two years, but has yet to receive what he requested.

Council members refer to the number of calls received from constituents from various issues, Jones said. He supposed that thorough council members are more likely to receive calls that at-large members such as he. Jones added that he does not receive many calls and does not talk with a lot of people. Consequently, he checks out the issues himself and "my votes are very independently arrived at."

He also concedes that maybe people decide that "it's not worth calling Jones because he's going to do his own thing."

Bob Jones finds that he reflects a perspective on issues not widely shared by Council.

"I have my own agenda of what I would like to do for the city and (this perspective) apparently is different from that of most people on Council."

Jones thinks that Virginia Beach has a unique opportunity to build a great and beautiful city, that "this will not come about by accident and will have to be planned."

Planning a city the way Washington was planned in its day is not possible in the dynamic situation found in Virginia Beach, he said. Still, what the city is getting is a mish mash, said Jones, and that's "what we're getting more of."

Approving the Comprehensive Plan early this year was a major mistake, Jones explained, because it misleads the citizens into thinking we have some sort of plan when we don't. "Even the Master Street and Highway Plan is inadequate," he said.

Jones finds the perception of the Pembroke area as the "down-town" of Virginia Beach an unfortunate idea. "We don't need a downtown; we need a diffusion of urban centers" that will make driving distances to work and shopping shorter.

Jones has no regular alliances with Council members, but will align with anyone when he approves of the issue. He liked Jennings' commission on local government and supported that.

"I don't feel allegiance to people as much as to ideas," he explains, and concludes that he was not "raised to be a politician. I like working with ideas; I like working with people. I guess I walk to a different drummer," he said.

Jones said that he is trying to plan for the long haul and no constituency out there is going to support you for the long haul.

Everyone who gets into politics, Jones concedes, has a reasonably strong ego, but the cost to the family also has to be considered. As for running again, he said, he has not made up his mind, but "I surely have not been voting as though I'm running again."

As an attorney, Jones said that he is trained to attack a colleague's ideas, but a personal attack is considered impolite, and he feels that the attack on him last Monday was unjustified.

As for the Sajo Farm affair, Jones said that the city in effect exchanged $1,275,000 for $175,000-worth of land.

Under the deal the city returned to Moore the manor house and four acres valued at $750,000, $500,000 to restore the property, and $25,000 for the cost of the right of way in exchange.

Beach Strawberry Guide out

From now until early June, the Virginia Beach strawberry crop will be available at farmer owned roadside stands and for pick-your-own. While some yield reduction appears to be evident because of a late April freeze, the overall quality of the berries should be quite good.

The Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture has put together a list of pick-your-own and roadside stand strawberry producers in the City of Virginia Beach. Copies can be obtained at Virginia Beach Public Libraries or at the Agriculture Department Building at the Municipal Center. When traveling to a farm for pick-your-own strawberries, always call before going so as to be sure of exact picking dates and times. In addition, one should bring their own containers since they are not furnished at most operations.

a drawing for a nine-day Caribbean cruise for two aboard the Queen Elizabeth II. The lucky winner's name will be announced during the local segment of the telethon on Sunday, June 2, between 3:30 and 4 p.m.

Tidewater Chapter's participating credit unions include: Virginia Beach FCU, Navy Yard FCU, Inc., Atlantic Fleet FCU, Naval Air FCU, Naval Supply Center CU, Naval Base Norfolk FCU, Navy P.W.C. FCU, Naval base FCU, Virginia Beach Postal FCU, Naval Hospital CU, Inc., Old Dominion University CU, Virginia Beach Municipal Employees FCU, Prime Care CU, Norfolk Fire Department FCU, Virginia Beach Schools FCU, St. Gregory FCU, TRT Employees FCU, Norfolk Teachers Association FCU, Norfolk Teachers FCU, Norfolk Postal CU, Rosso & Mastracco Employees CU, Farm Fresh Employees CU, Guardian FCU, St. Pius X FCU and the Texaco Employees CU.

"We are very pleased that these credit unions decided to join in this year's telethon," said Sue Roady, King's Daughter's telethon coordinator. "We hope their participation will lead to continued support from the chapters and their member credit unions."

"All funds raised in Hampton Roads will directly benefit the Children's Hospital of The King's Daughters. As Virginia's only full-service acute care facility designed specifically for children, it serves as a regional referral center for all pediatric specialties," said Roady.

The Children's Miracle Network Telethon was established as an annual event in 1983 through the Osmond Foundation in collaboration with the National Association of Children's Hospitals and Related Institutions (NACHRI).

Their concern for the welfare of all children spurred the famous and talented Osmond family to establish the foundation in 1970.

Children's Hospital of The King's Daughters and over 95 other children's hospitals across the United States and Canada have joined the Miracle Network Telethon to present the greatest fund-raising and consciousness-raising benefit program ever staged for the children of North America.

The telethon originates from the Osmond Studios in Orem, Utah and is seen all over the United States and Canada. Marie Osmond and John Schneider are the national co-chairmen.

Locally, Dick Lamb and Sherri Brennen will co-host telethon segments along with the Channel 13 news team and local radio personalities.

Credit union members who wish to volunteer their time during the 21-hour telethon should call Paula Porter, volunteer coordinator, at 627-4781.

Crime Solvers

Hill

Two sought by police

The Virginia Beach Crime Solvers Program is looking for two suspects, Ruth Anne Hill and Dennis Mark King, wanted in connection with several crimes committed in Virginia Beach.

Ruth Anne Hill is a 29 year old white female, 5'4" tall, 160 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes. She often wears large round frame glasses. Hill, who also uses the last name of Caceres and Dixon, is wanted for 26 charges involving credit card theft and forgery, the passing and forgery of worthless checks, and two charges of violation of probation.

Dennis Mark King is a 19 year old white male with brown hair and blue eyes. He is 5'9" tall and weighs 150 pounds. King is being sought in connection with a December 15, 1984 incident in which he and an accomplice allegedly robbed and assaulted a 23 year old sailor at the oceanfront. He failed to appear in court on 4-25-85 to answer the charges.

Anyone who has information regarding the whereabouts of these or any other wanted person is asked to call Crime Solvers at 429-0000 and may get up to $1,000 reward. Cash is also offered for information concerning the recovery of stolen property, the confiscation of illegal drugs, or about any crime committed in Virginia Beach.

You never have to give your name when calling Crime Solvers.

On water gardening

By Jay Mears

McDonald Garden Center

Water has always had a strong attraction to all people. When used in the garden it can bring a refreshing cool to those warm days of summer. There's a certain indescribable fascination that only water gardening can bring to the senses. From the music of trickling water, to the movement of colorful fish beneath blooming lilies, water gardening can bring a special feeling of peace and tranquility.

Spring 1985 brings Tidewater Water gardeners and McDonald Garden Center close together. We will be offering a complete line of plants, pools, pumps, filters, fish, and everything else you'll need to be successful at this most intriguing style of gardening. We've developed a series of free handouts to help guide you along the way. We have staff experts, Melanie in Hampton and Mike in Virginia Beach, who are experienced and ready to share their enthusiasm for water gardening with you.

When used in the landscape, water quite naturally becomes the focal point of the garden. Just as in other types of gardening, one of the great satisfactions is growing the beautiful and varied types of plants available today. Learning the difference between hardy and tropical lilies as well as day bloomers and night bloomers can be most rewarding. It's funny how attached you can get to your Koi (Japanese Goldfish) as they actually develop their own personalities. At our Virginia Beach store in the display pond, we've even named on large Koi Bruce. He's over 14 inches long and is considered head Koi in charge!

If you've not got room for one of our pools or pool liners, you may want to try container water gardening. With just a whiskey barrel and a liner or any heavy plastic tub you can have blooms all season by just planting one lily in it. It makes a great conversation piece for the patio or deck.

The pleasures of water gardening are just a short drive away to McDonald Garden Centers. With a little space and imagination water gardening can bring you hours of joy and relaxation. Welcome to the fascinating world of water gardening.

change for 2.88 acres of land to meet the open space requirement of the PDH-2.

Jones believes the city would have gotten more land if the item had been sent back to the Planning commission. "When a guy makes a million for being a nice guy—we're not as sharp as businessmen." The people in Bayside, where the development is located, are livid, said Jones. How did the final vote go?

Six-five.

Voting for the 2.88 acre settlement were Mayor Harold Heischberger, Vice Mayor Reba McClanahan, Councilmen John A. Baum, J. Henry McCoy and Jack Fentress, and Councilwoman Nancy Creech.

Voting against the settlement were Councilmen Louis R. Jones, H. Jack Jennings Jr., Councilwomen Barbara Henley and Meyera Oberdorf, "and me," said Jones, again in the minority.

Hospice is a program which provides palliative and supportive care for terminally-ill patients and their families, either directly or on a consulting basis with the patient's physician or another community agency such as the Visiting Nurse Association. Originally a medical name for a way station for pilgrims and travelers where they could be replenished, refreshed, and cared for, Hospice is used here for an organized program of care for people going through life's last station.

Beach students

SRA test scores continue to climb

VIRGINIA BEACH—Students in the public schools of Virginia Beach have scored between 11 and 24 percentile points above the national average (50th percentile) on standardized achievement tests, according to data received from the Virginia State Assessment Program. Results of the 1984-85 SRA achievement test, which is administered to all students in the 4th, 8th and 11th grades, also show that scores of Virginia Beach students have risen significantly since 1982, the first year the present test was given.

At the 4th grade level, 1984-85 SRA test scores of Virginia Beach students improved over last year in reading, math, language arts and science. Scores on the reference materials and social sciences portions of the test, already well above the national average, were the same as last year.

Scores for 8th graders improved in all categories of the test this year. Eleventh graders scored higher on the math, language arts and reference materials segments, stayed the same on social studies, and were lower by a single percentile point on reading and science.

It is important to note that when scores are as high as those of Virginia Beach public school students, an increase of four percentile points, as in the 11th grade math score (from 66 to 70), is considered highly significant. The higher the achievement scores are to begin with, the greater the difficulty is for posting any real improvement. A 70th percentile average level of performance, for instance, means that a Virginia Beach student's achievement is as high or higher than 70 percent of students nationwide who took the test.

A total of approximately 12,000 students enrolled in the 4th, 8th and 11th grades in the public schools of Virginia Beach took the SRA test in March of this year.

"I am very, very pleased with the high scores, especially when we consider the diverse, heterogeneous, mobile, highly transient nature of our student population," said Dr. E.E.

Brickell, superintendent of Virginia Beach Public Schools. "I believe these scores are one more indication that our schools, overall, are doing a superb job."

The SRA achievement test is the primary component of the Virginia State Assessment Program, which reports to the Virginia General Assembly, to the State Board of Education, and to the general public how school systems compare nationally and within the State of Virginia. The Virginia Beach school division, however, goes beyond the use of the test for purposes of comparison; teachers and principals are encouraged and taught to use the test results to identify strengths and weaknesses of students and to diagnose individual learning

The 1985 Virginia Beach SRA test results continue to confirm the indication of earlier measures of program performance and student achievement: Virginia Beach students continue to perform at levels significantly higher than the average for their national, state and local counterparts. Scores for 1985 in Virginia Beach range from over 20 percent higher than the national average to just under 50 percent higher.

G. Dewey Simmons, president of Virginia Beach's new television station, Summit Communications, Inc. reflects on the FCC approval of their construction permit. Sun photo by Brenda P. Lookes.

TV license approved

Simmons, also a real estate investor, is immediately beginning a search for a general manager and hopes to commence construction on the station in the near future. Currently Summit Communications has three sites under consideration. Although Simmons would not release these locations during a recent press conference, he alluded that "one of the best locations could very possibly be located in the Pembroke area. Needless to say, the land is a bit expensive in this area."

The ultra-high frequency, UHF Channel will have its station tower and antenna in the Centerville Turnpike area, serving primarily the City of Virginia Beach and most of the Tidewater area.

Simmons would like to be on the air by the end of this year but thinks more realistically that air time will be in the spring of 1986. "It will probably be determined by arrangements for financing, the final settlement on a site, and the engineering will have to be approved on the site selected. At this time we're not sure when we'll be on the air."

From finding a site and building the station, to operating on air, Simmons gave a rough estimate of $3.5 - 4 million to finance the operation.

Although Summit Communications hasn't spoken with City officials yet, according to Simmons, they may soon, "to seek some help in the way of financing through Industrial Revenue Bonds."

Is there room for another television station with so many competitors already in the race?

"I think there is definitely room. I think we'll appeal to pretty much the same audience that other stations do; the difference has to be in the programming and the fact that there is a lot of community pride in Virginia Beach's own licensed television station," explained Simmons. "No other station can say—with studios in Virginia Beach, VA."

Programming for Summit Communications will be similar to the network stations but Simmons might have some special programs up his sleeve, such as local audience participation shows.

"We may want to do little creative and innovative type things, and we may editorialize a bit more," he said. "When you have some good ideas, you like to keep them around with your own people for awhile. They may be good and if they are that good, I don't want another station to put them on before we do."

Summit Communications has a lot of "good intelligent people" in the organization, who will be coming up with programming ideas, said Simmons, but much of the programming materials will depend on the general manager and his/her recommendations.

Once the station is built and operating, the FCC will test and evaluate Summit Communications and decide whether to grant a license to continue operations.

"The license will be granted after the FCC is satisfied that we will operate efficiently at that frequency," said Simmons. Currently there are 11 directors and four officers with the organization. All affiliates are Virginia Beach residents.

"We all have a background of involvement in local civic activities," said Simmons, a former city councilman. "We felt that local people had a particular interest in bringing a quality type programming to this area, with a quality station."

In recalling how Summit Communications formed, Simmons felt it was because of a common interest. "It was unbelievable, like fate decreed that it would happen this way," he said. "We started out with this idea, then we began to think of people we would like to have with us. As we contacted them or they contacted us, it meshed into a real fine group - a family type operation."

The officers and directors of Summit Communications are: G. Dewey Simmons, Jr., president; Cynthia Davenport, vice-president; Robin H. Anderson, secretary; and Millie Danner Johnson, treasurer. The directors are: William J. Davenport, III, Antonio Ornelas, Marianne Ornelas, Andrew T. Carrington, and Teresa Carrington.

Accident prevention movies set

"How to Have an Accident at Work," "How to Have an Accident in the Home," "How to Save a Choking Victim," the Heimlich Maneuver and "Drownproofing" will be shown on Friday, June 7, at 10 a.m. in the Great Neck Area Library (1251 Bayne Drive). This movie program, intended for adults, especially parents of children in the storyline given at the same time, will last approximately 35 minutes. Registration is not required. For further information on this movie program that promotes safety Sun readers should call the library at 481-6094.

TIDEWATER'S OVERNIGHT SENSATION HAS ARRIVED.

We've created a sensation in Virginia Beach. A dazzling new hotel that's going to quicken the pulse of the city's emerging downtown area. The new Virginia Beach Plaza-Hotel.

A Sensational Place To Stay.

It's happened already in Manhattan and Chicago. And in Washington and Minneapolis. Now it's happening in Virginia Beach, as the Virginia Beach Plaza-Hotel becomes the tenth member of the distinctive family of Sensational Plaza-Hotels.

Like the others, the Virginia Beach Plaza-Hotel offers a unique combination of style, convenient location, special amenities and exceptional service. At a price you can afford.

Each of the 150 rooms and suites is richly appointed in plush decor. The innovative design of the five-story atrium creates a refreshing environment for the sparkling indoor pool and charming lobby bar. And guests will appreciate our other special facilities and amenities. Such as our exclusive health and fitness center, complete with separate saunas for men and women.

Our Special Restaurant Doesn't Require A Special Occasion.

Nikolais is a fine new restaurant you can afford to enjoy anytime. We serve delicious entrees — beef, fowl, seafood and more — that are priced in the $8-17 range. Your meal is served in our beautiful dining room of warm garden surroundings. And best of all, when you dine at Nikolais, all you pay for is the food. The atmosphere's on us.

A Sensational Place For Business Or Meeting People.

The Virginia Beach Plaza-Hotel is a great place for the business traveler. All rooms have generous work areas and our king suites come equipped with two phones. A fully-trained staff can attend to all your needs. And our central location puts us midway between the oceanfront and downtown Norfolk.

Our location will also make us popular with meeting people. We can accommodate small business conferences to large social gatherings. And our state-of-the-art meeting facilities, including several meeting and conference rooms, a 70-seat amphitheater and a 300-seat banquet room, will help a wide variety of groups meet with success.

June 15th, The Sensational Sizzle Of Streamers Arrives.

Streamers is destined to become one of the country's hottest new nightclubs. And its nine levels of sizzling excitement will be under our very own roof. Once inside, you'll experience great music, original video entertainment, outrageous special effects and more exotic surprises that are guaranteed to turn up the heat in your night life.

Monday, The Wait Is Over.

On Monday, June 3rd we open our doors to the public. And from that point forward, the hotel business in Tidewater Virginia will never be the same. Because at the Virginia Beach Plaza-Hotel we'll never be satisfied with being just another good place to stay. Not as long as we can be an overnight sensation. For more information or reservations call 473-1700.
